Fatal family tree

Two years ago, Mrs. Rose Silva of Livermore found herself on the front page of the New York Times and featured in nightly newscasts.

Her family, it seems, was discovered to have a rare, fatal, hereditary disease which had already killed many relatives and dated back more than 100 years.

Since that initial discovery, Mrs. Silva has been instrumental in the forming of the International Joseph's Disease Foundation, an organization based in Livermore and dedicated to fighting the illness.

She has located hundreds with the disease — people with Portuguese ancestry — and she's still working at the problem.

One million

Kristin Barnhart, left, congratulates Kerri Macaulay on beinq the one-millionth patron to check out a book through the sequentially numbered IBM card system at the Dublin Public Library since that library has been in its present location at 6930 Villaoe Parkway. The library was moved there in 197M, according to Virginia Bennett, head librarian. Barnhart is LibrarY Assistant II. Kerri, 4, came to the library Saturday with her sister Lauren, 9, to see the free films the library offers each Saturday at 2 p.m. Kerri, who lives in Dublin, was checking out some picture books.

Pleasanton headed for a hefty budget surplus

PLEASANTON — The city has reason to pat its wallet and smile.

A mid-year budget review indicates the city will end the 1977-78 fiscal year with almost 10 percent of the budget untouched in reserve.

But homeowners should prepare for an increase in sewer service fees. That department is expected to have a $49,000 deficit — much better than the predicted $150,000 deficit, but costly enough to cause the city manager's office to recommend council increase sewer fees.

For the past two years, residents have paid $11.50 every eight weeks for sewer service.

Overall, revenues are higher than city staff predicted a year ago January.

New estimates show the city bringing in $3.7 million in tax revenue — $150,000 more than expected. Assistant city attorney Jim Walker believes the increase is due to sales tax from Mission Plaza shopping center.

Mission Plaza opened its doors last April, several months after budget predictions were made, and wasn't fully accounted for in the annual budget guess-work.

However, transfer tax revenue is also expected to be $25,000 more than original estimates. That indicates people are selling and buying homes here at a greater rate each year. Transfer tax revenue doubled a year ago also, pointing to a definite trend. But there seem to be just as many persons buying as selling.

Although the city limits new sewer connections to about 140 a year, many of the connections allocated in 1976-77 weren't actually purchased until this year. Thus, building permit fees should be $53,000 higher than estimated, according to the budget review.

City council probably will be pleased with the budget news, but elected officials never expected to end the year in debt. Council put a 7 percent reserve in the budget as a safeguard and to cover revisions made throughout the year.

Council has made nine budget amendments so far That would have brought the reserve down to 5.8 percent if not for the unexpected additional tax revenues.

Bob Allen

Allen to challenge Stark

As Rep. Pete Stark (D-Oakland) met with some of his Valley constituents yesterday, a Republican challenger, BART director Bob Allen of Livermore, threw his hat into the ring for the Ninth Congressional District contest.

Allen, 51, a BART director since 1974, was the first Republican to announce his candidacy for the June 6 primary. No Democrats have declared. Allen has yet to file for the race.

Stark, who won the district with 70 percent of the vote in 1976, said Friday, "I never felt I'd go unopposed in the general election. A responsible discussion of the issues keeps me on my toes."

Allen said he was running because of his "interest in public service" and contended Stark's voting record had been "98 percent wrong in representing the voters."

He is an assistant engineer in cost analysis for the Southern Pacific railroad. He and his wife, Thelma, have seven children and have lived in Livermore for 20 years.

Stark, in his third term in Congress, was at the Livermore Recreation Center yesterday fielding questions from constituents in one of his occasional "People's Forums."

Lindgren case

Richmond judge for arraignment

A Richmond judge has been selected by the state judicial counsel to preside at Ronald L. Lindgren's Wednesday arraignment on felony charges in Livermore Municipal Court.

Judge Bessie P. Dreibelbis was assigned to the court Friday when Judges a John A. Lewis and Mark L. Eaton disqualified themselves from the Lindgren case.

Lindgren, the former Livermore police chief, was charged Tuesday with three felony counts of oral copulation with three teenage boys and a forth misdemeanor count of child molesting.

Wednesday he is slated to formally hear the charges before Dreibelbis and could enter a plea at that time. He is currently free after posting $1,000 cash bail.

Dreibelbis has presided at the Bay Judicial District in Richmond since her appointment by Governor Ronald Reagan in 1973. She was elected to a six-year term last year. A widow with a 22-year-old son attending UC Berkeley, she practiced law privately before moving to the bench.

More seniors' TV service

Lillian Snorf, director of Livermore's Senior Center, hopes the public will get behind a TV personality's crusade for more federally sponsored services for senior citizens.

Snorf has prepared opinion messages available at the center if you wish to influence politicians in favor of the services.

Lincoln Day closures

City offices in Livermore and Pleasanton, the Dublin San Ramon Services District offices, all Valley school districts and the Alameda County Fair Association offices will be closed Monday in observance of Lincoln Day.

But post offices and postal deliveries will be on a regular weekday schedule.

Most banks will be open this Monday but closed Feb. 20.

City offices and school districts will also be closed on the 20th, commemorating Washington's birthday.

Canadian crash

Lab's satellite cleanup costly

LIVERMORE — Cleaning up radioactive debris from the Russian spy satellite that crashed in Canada's Northwest Territory is costing Lawrence Livermore Laboratory $10,000 per day, seven days a week, according to lab spokesman Jeff Garberson.

And, that's only what it's costing the federal government to maintain a force of 19 scientists from LLL. The San Ramon-based EG&G corporation, which also is contracted by the federal government to clean up Russia's radioactive mess in the Canadian wilderness, has a staff on location that is six times as big as LLL's — about 120 scientists.

No one from EG&G Inc. was available Friday to comment on their share of the cleaning bill.

The only other Valley participant in the Canadian-U.S. task force dubbed "Operation Morning Light" is Billy Sanders from Sandia Laboratories in Livermore. Sanders, who normally handles computer information in the combustion research program at Sandia, was sent to the Northwest Territory to plot probable trajectories of the wreckage. Based on the scale used by LLL to compute cost of clean-up operatione' it appears Sandia spent $500 each day Sanders was there.

According to Garberson, of the $70,000 that "Morning Light" perweeh, $2, is spent for input from researchers on site in Livermore.

And, how long will U.S. scientists be there? Garberson said the current task force strength should be needed for another two or three weeks. After that, the Livermore force would decrease but some would still be needed as spring approaches.

This means the U. S. government will spend about $250,000 for only LLL's share of the operation. This does not include funds used by EG&G Inc.

Dr. Richard Wagner, team leader for the LLL delegation, said the majority of expenditures was being absorbed by the Canadian government who supplies the bulk of airplanes, helicopters, and military personnel used in the operation.

Vallecitos GE shutdown to continue

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Federal officials said Friday they are "having a difficult time" resolving the technical issues surrounding the shutdown of the General Electric Test Reactor (GETR) at Vallecitos.

Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) staffers said it could be "quite some time" before a final staff judgement is reached. They said several more meetings with GE representatives will be required.

At the same time, however, the NRC scientists made it clear that any difficulty or uncertainty works to the disadvantage of GE.

On the possibility of an earthquake at or near Vallecitos, for example, GE is going to have to demonstrate that the unusual geological formation first recorded in a government map last year was caused by a landslide, not an earthquake.

Groundwater bill has merits?

A proposed California groundwater management bill would help the Valley but other parts of the state need it more, according to Zone 7 general manager Mun Mar.

"Additional authority would be helpful for us but it's not critical," he said about Sen. John Nejedly's groundwater bill that would put pumping and recharge responsibilities on the shoulders of local agencies sharing the same aquifer.

"Public agencies would be constituted as the local water management board and they would develop, after looking at the local scene, a coordinated program for that aquifer," said Nejedly Friday.

"You'd be able to determine what are the sources and conditions of the aquifer and who are the people pumping it and utilizing it," he added.

Mar placed the safe annual pumping of Valley groundwater at a rate near 18,000 to 20,000 acre-feet, a figure he said Zone 7 approached during the last two drought years. However he noted that was an average and i some years there could be even more or less groundwater use.

One method of controlling aquifer depletion, he noted, was to limit the amount of groundwater pumped by Zone 7 then sold to its contracting buyers.

However private pumpers are currently unrestricted though the Nejedly bill could change that.

"If an aquifer seemed depleted by one pumper his activities would have to be controlled," Nejedly said.

Rap Sheet

Man charged in rape

LIVERMORE — A 24-year-old Martinez man has been charged with rape and burglary in an alleged attack on a woman in the North I-580 area of town this week, police reported.

According to officers, a man posing as a private investigator was asking residents in the area if they had any information on a girl supposedly missing from her Oakland home for one year.

The suspect approached one resident's home twice, the second time asking to use her telephone. She became suspicious and called police who staked out the suspect's vehicle.

The man returned to his car and told police he had been soliciting magazine subscriptions. Officers checked his story and discovered that he had quit that line of business 10 days earlier.

Police went to the last home the suspect had visited and a woman there told police she had just been raped. The rapist said he was a private investigator and wanted to use her phone, she told police.

Charged with rape and burglary was Richard Wayne Carper, 24, of Martinez.

PLEASANTON — A large quantity of paraphernalia used to ingest marijuana was stolen from New Age Traders Inc. at 7063 Commerce Circle Thursday, police reported.

Burglars apparently entered a crawl way in front of the building and dropped down into the store which set off an audible burglar alarm. No one heard the alarm, police believe, since its batteries were completely drained when employees came to the store after the burglary had occurred.

Missing items include water pipes, rolling papers, pipe screens and cigarette holders.

An anonymous caller led police to recover a box of the stolen property at the corner of Rose and Augustine streets Thursday evening. The man later called back and said he had more of the items at his house.

Five youths told police they found the items in or next to a garbage bin behind the store. They told police they had been selling the articles to schoolmates.

No arrests were made.

PLEASANTON — An Arroyo Drive apartment dweller attempting to chase his daughter's ex-husband from their front door fired buckshot from a .38-caliber derringer into the air Thursday night, police reported.

Neighbors called police to report the shot which followed a loud argument at the residence. Officers made a report of the shooting and will forward it to the district attorney's office for possible prosecution. No arrests were made.

PLEASANTON — Burglars forced their way into a Santa Rita Road residence Thursday and stole a quantity of valuables, police reported.

A laundry room door had been wrenched open, police said, and all rooms had been ransacked. Missing items include two television sets, three rifles, ski equipment, typewriter, .25-caliber pistol and camera equipment.

There are no suspects.

PLEASANTON — A Stanley Boulevard trailer park resident allegedly shot a cat with a pellet gun because it continually defecated in his garden, police reported.

Officers took a report on the incident and forwarded it to the district's attorney's office for possible action. No arrests were made.

A pellet was removed from the cat and the animal is reportedly recovering.

VW bug, motorcycle meet but low rider loses match

PLEASANTON — It was a close call for motorcyclist Ralph Raper Friday afternoon.

At least that's what witnesses said at the scene on Bernal Avenue where Raper's motorcycle ended up sandwiched between the bottom of a Volkswagen and the pavement.

"I thought I was just gonna bounce off," said Raper, 19, while sitting on the sidewalk next to Valley Bank after the collision.

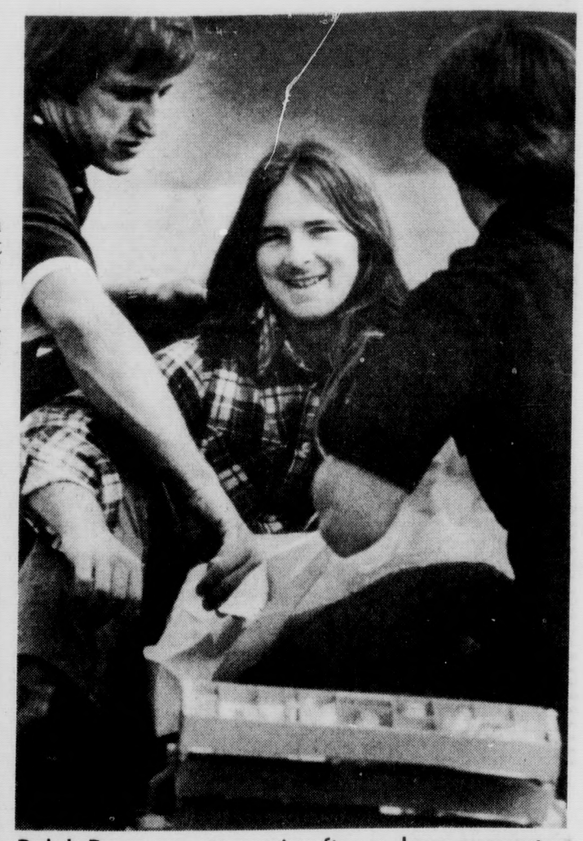
And, what was it like practically getting swallowed up by a car? "I saw the car come over the top of me," he said, "and then I just pulled myself out."

Pleasanton police said that the person in the Volkswagen, Carol L. Wolfgram, 29, from Pleasanton, was making a left turn into the Valley Bank parking lot while heading west on Bernal Avenue from Main Street. The motorcycle overtook and passed her car on the left, according to police, crossing over double yellow lines in the process.

"He clipped her on the left and went down," said officer J.D. Swan, "and the car inadvertently ran up on top of the motorcycle."

Raper, a resident of Ione, Ca., walked away from the wreck and was given first aid by Pleasanton firemen at the scene for and arm injury. Police said he might have sustained a "bump" on the head which could have been prevented, they said, had he been wearing the full-faced helmet that was strapped to the bike.

Police are still investigating the accident. Raper was taken to Valley Memorial Hospital in Livermore where he was treated and released.



Ralph Raper sports a grin after a close encounter with a Volkswagen. He's just happy to be alive. Pleasanton firemen Mike St. John (left) and Mike Emerick apply first aid to Raper's injured arm.

Valley pick near for planner

OAKLAND — Alameda County Supervisor Valerie Raymond is winding up interviews with candidates for the planning commission job now held by George Spiliotopoulos.

Raymond has interviewed seven candidates, all from the Valley, and expects to make a decision in a couple of weeks.

Spiliotopoulos' seat is one of three which have expired. His term and the term of Lois Rusteika of Castro Valley expired at the end of last year. William Carpenter's term lapsed at the end of 1975. The latter two positions are the appointments of Supervisor Joseph Bort.

Commissioners continue in office until they either are reappointed or replaced.

Spiliotopoulos, who owns The Cheese Factory in Pleasanton, was appointed by former Supervisor John Murphy in 1972. Raymond's planning philosophy is markedly different from Murphy's and, as Raymond told The Times recently, "I don't think Spiliotopoulos expected to be reappointed."

The Times asked Bort several weeks ago about Carpenter's "long term" and his only comment was that he "had not made up" his mind about it. He added that at that time he was "not in a position to make a decision."

Lawrence Lab costs about $10,000 a day

He said the Soviet Union has not even acknowledged any details about their satellite let alone chip in on expenses.

Lawrence Livermore Lab's Director Roger Batzel assured reporters at a press conference last week that he did not want associate director Wagner to neglect his responsibilities at Livermore. Wagner will rotate "Morning Light" duty each week with the lab's Bill Nelson.

Wagner quipped about the high cost of living in the Northwest Territory. He said it costs $63 per night per person to stay at the Igloo Inn in Bakers Lake which he described as merely a "large Quonset hut."

And, what have U.S. scientists accomplished in their mission? Five fragments have been recovered so far, four of which were radioactive and range in size from a pin head to to a four-foot strut.

All the pieces are in custody of the Canadian government and the most radioactive one was emitting 200 rads per hour. According to LLL scientists it would take 15 to 20 hours for a human to get a lethal dose of radiation standing three feet away.

After U.S. and Canadian scientists are finished examining the fragments, plans call for shipping them back to the Soviet Union.

GE reactor ruling delayed

But that won't be easy because the formation is connected to the Calaveras Fault, and one of the official criteria for identifying a fault is "structural relationship" to a known fault.

NRC's Al Schwencer said, "Sufficient information has not been made available to us to rule out the possibility" that the newly recognized formation is not a fault.

Named the Verona Fault in the 1977 map done by the U.S. Geological Survey, the formation runs only 200 feet from the GETR.

Friday's comments came during and after a briefing of the NRC's Advisory Committee on Reactor Safeguards. The ACRS is not expected to be involved in any decisions on the GETR, but it routinely gets involved about safety matters so that it can formulate policy recommendations on broad issues.

Schwencer told the ACRS that because GE realizes the geological question will be pending awhile, GE has undertaken to argue that even if a quake should happen, the GETR will not spread radiation.

He said that case is strengthened by the fact that the GETR is an "unusually simple system."

NRC has estimated that a Verona Fault earthquake could cause ground movement at a rate of about .75 G's. GE said the GETR could withstand .8 G's safely.

However, Schwencer said, that figure doesn't deal with the possibility of the earth under the GETR actually rupturing, rather than just vibrating. That, he said, brings the discussion back to the existence of the Verona Fault.

The GETR, which supplied radioactive substances for medical and industrial purposes, was shut down last fall by NRC order, just weeks after the NRC says it learned of the new map. Some 60 employees have been laid off as the GE bid to restart it pends.

Sierra Club renews fight to block dude ranch plan

SAN FRANCISCO — The Sierra Club made a second try to have its appeal against William Apperson's proposed dude ranch in Sunol heard by the California Supreme Court Friday.

A clerk of the court said the justices will consider the second petition in their regular course of business March 1 or 2.

The first petition was rejected because Alameda County changed the ordinance on which the club had appealed. In effect, it made the point of protest a moot one.

But now lawyers for the Sierra Club are objecting that the county went about the change in an irregular way.

Sierra Club attorneys were not available for comment Friday, but it is believed they will argue that the county violated state law by not doing a negative declaration or environmental impact report on the amendment in the county ordinance.

In addition, they might raise the point that supervisors approved the change without referring it to the planning commission.

Apperson wants to convert his 2,555 acre ranch into a dude ranch with 322 guest cottages.

The controversy revolves around whether or not the county ordinance in the first place "in an could allow those guest cottages in an agricultural district. Supposedly the change made their allowance very clear, but the Sierra Club thinks the change came about illegally.

Fair board to select new pavilion designer

County Fair Association directors will act on selecting an architect for the $550,000 Amador Livestock Pavilion at Tuesday's board meeting.

The buildings and grounds committee of the board will also make several other recommendations, including architect and engineering proposals for a clock tower on Theatre Walk and a new Gate C entry way.

Construction of permanent lighting in parking lots 5, 6 and 7 is already underway and is expected to be completed well in advance of the Fair. Portable lighting has been utilized in past years.

Directors will also learn of the resignation of fellow-director Jack Harrison of Castro Valley. An appointee of Supervisor Joseph Bort, Harrison had served on the board for slightly more than a year.

Directors will convene at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the Fair offices on Pleasanton Avenue in Pleasanton.

Jarvis tax plan

SRV schools see huge loss

DANVILLE — Orrin Bachelor, business manager for the San Ramon Valley Unified School District, estimates the district would take a $10 million knockout wallop if the Jarvis-Gann tax initiative is passed in June.

In a report to Superintendent Allan Petersdorf and receive by trustees earlier this week, Bachelor said there is a "considerable" discrepancy as to the loss of property tax income in Contra Costa County.

Bachelor says that Jarvis-Gann backers believe the total loss would be about 7.5 million dollars. A consortium of school district and Contra Costa County officials say the loss would be more like $9 million.

"It seems that the actual amount of loss is not the crucial matter," Bachelor reported. "Our immediate concern is the effect upon our district operation. I have a rather consistent figure that the proposition (To be listed on the ballot as Proposition 13) would require about a 67 per cent reduction in property tax revenue. It is impossible to be precise on a percentage reduction since the percentage impact depends on current tax rates."

Breaking down the fiscal year 1979 forecast, which shows the $10 million deficit if Jarvis is approved, Bachelor concludes the district would be left with about 14,126 students and 700 certificated staff — and no lights, water, paper, books, heat, secretaries, custodians, aides, etc.!

Emphasizing that projecting a property tax loss is difficult, Bachelor notes several "unknowns" contributing to the difficulty;

— According to some constitutional attorneys, education is one of the very few functions that has constitutional dictate for use of property taxes. "If Jarvis passes," Bachelor asks rhetorically, "will the loss of property tax revenue be distributed equitably or will education garner a larger share of remaining tax revenue?"

— How will the Serrano-Priest decision be impacted by the passage of the measure?

— What happens to a district that has had a 49 per cent growth in assessed valuation since 1975-76, asks Bachelor in his report. The Jarvis-Gann measure requires that assessed valuation be set at the 1975 level. "Would our district loss exceed two-thirds?"

Bachelor said the financial forecast for 1979 projected an income of $28.9 million, including $15.3 million general, $315,262 for community service and $158,513 adult. The figure adds up to $15.8 million and two-thirds of it would result in the estimated deficit of $10 million as offered by Bachelor.

Bachelor concludes, "There are a lot of unknowns about the effect of the proposition and there is twice as much propaganda on both sides about what it will do and not do and there will be fourfold that in the next few months — some facts, some lies, and lots of emotions."

Falcon Trading Post manager Barry Witt and staff salesperson display jewelry and stationery items.

Foothill High 'Trading Post'

PLEASANTON— The "Falcon Trading Post" is winging its way to providing students at Foothill High School with merchandising experience while giving back funds to he underwrite an expanded number of student activities.

Opened for the first time last fall, the student store offers a variety of items and serves as a training grounds for some 25 students in Bob Miller's distributive education class.

The student store class is but one of many classes and activities scheduled in the Amador Valley Joint High School District under the vocational education heading.

The "voc-ed" curriculum will be saluted with its own "week" during the coming week.

Students get five units of business credit per semester.

The Falcon Trading Post is open approximately 10 hours a week — 15 minutes before school, at brunch, lunch, and after school.

Miller and students Vickie Sanders and Debbie Lee spent part of last summer fashioning the interior of the snug little store, located in the Instructional Materials Center.

The student staffers, headed by store manager Barry Witt, make all the decions regarding merchandise to stock, special sales, outlets for advertising, and which vendors to do business with.

Among the items stocked are stationery, pencils, posters (There's a large one of Sylvester "Rocky" Stallone displayed), "Foothill" shirts, sweat suits, stuffed animals and potted plants. The staff is also considering stocking records and adding art.

The store is currently grossing about $500 a week, with 30 per cent going back to the student body for scheduling of bigger and better activities for students.

Asked if the store was popular with students, Miller said it had become a popular "hangout" for students. John Ramirez, a student store class member, added, "I think they like it because it's convenient."

Notice of sales and items stocked is publicized around campus, in the student newspaper and over the public address system every day.

The class meets five periods each week and each youngster working in the store must put in a minimum of 20 minutes a week — most put in a whole lot more, according to Miller.

"The purpose of the class and the store is to teach them how to buy, merchandise and sell products," Miller comments.

From the attractive and neat look of the display cases and shelves, it's obvious the Falcon Trading Post staffers are learning their lessons and applying them well.

Focus on classroom aides to highlight school meet

Approximately 80 school personnel will focus on instructional aides in the classroom Tuesday, Feb. 28 when they gather for a workshop sponsored by the Association of California School Administrators (ACSA) in Hayward.

The three-hour session is designed to improve a school's instructional aide program. Workshop participants will learn how aides can contribute to classroom learning, how to provide the best training for aides, and how to recruit classroom aides.

Aides assist classroom teachers in small group instruction, correcting papers, and preparing instructional materials, among other activities.

This workshop is one of more than 150 that will be offered this year by ACSA's professional development program, according to Dr. Bert Corona, ACSA president.

Jarvis tax reform on Dublin program

Gordon Winton, a former state legislator and now legislative advocate for the Association of California School Administrators, will discuss the Jarvis-Gann amendment at a Thursday night meeting in Dublin.

Occasion is the Diablo Chapter, Phi Delta Kappa, meeting at the Dublin Corral.

President Jim Scott, principal at Valley View School in Pleasanton, says the dinner meeting will begin at 6:30 p.m. A cocktail hour is scheduled for 5:30 p.m.

Farewell gift

WALNUT CREEK — Bennie Martinez, a prosecutor with the Contra Costa County district attorney's office and Walnut Creek resident, has announced his candidacy for Municipal Court Judge in the Walnut Creek-Danville judicial district.

Before serving as prosecutor Martinez had private practice in Walnut Creek, is a past president of the Walnut Creek chamber of commerce and the Walnut Festival Association.

He is a member of the Mt. Diablo Bar Association and the California District Attorneys' Association.

A graduate of the University of Southern California and Howard University, he and his wife Herminia has five sons and lived in Walnut Creek for 22 years.

Kephart to speak

Pleasanton city council candidate Stan Kephart will be available to talk with voters at a campaign coffee Wednesday at 7:30 p.m.

Kephart supporters Patty and Alan Grossman are giving the coffee in their home at 3405 Bordeux Place.

Dyer supported

Alameda County Undersheriff Glenn Dyer has announced the county chapter of the Latino Peace Officers' Association has endorsed his candidacy for Alameda County Sheriff. The association's endorsement came in a letter from president Manuel Aquino who wrote, "Your knowledge, experience and proven administrative expertise in law enforcement qualifies You as the best candidate to serve al the residents of Alameda County."

Twin Valley YMCA officials are ready to launch their 13th annual sustaining membership drive on Feb. 15. Preparing for the kickoff are Ted Carpenter, left, Russ Kamp, David Greiner and Bob Batz.

YMCA set for fund drive here

LIVERMORE — The Twin Valley Young Mens' Christian Association (YMCA) is gearing up to launch its 13th annual sustaining membership drive which will begin Feb. 15 and continue for three weeks.

This branch of the YMCA headquarters at 1542 Holmes St., Livermore. It serves Dublin, Pleasanton, Livermore and Sunol, according to David Greiner, campaign general chairman. He also serves on the Twin Valley YMCA's board of directors.

A majority of contributions to the drive, which are tax deductible, are slated to go toward implementing Twin Valley YMCA programs, Greiner added. The goal is to raise $18,000. The money can be donated during the drive or as ongoing contributions through pledges, he continued.

A kickoff dinner for the drive will be held Feb. 15, 6:30 p.m. at the Livermore Ranch. The key speaker will be Judge Joseph Schenone. He is a retired judge from Livermore.

The main use for the money this year will be to expand the Twin Valley YMCA "Y-Pals" program. This program deals with the single parent/child family relationship.

This program is one of many Twin Valley YMCA programs aimed toward and strengthening whole splintered family units.

The "Y-Indian Princesses" group is for fathers and daughters; "Y-Indian Guide", for fathers and sons. The age group is 5 to 9 years for the children.

"Y-Pathfinders" for girls and "Y-Trailblazers" for boys is set up for students in the third grade and up.

The "Y-Indian Princesses and Guide" groups emphasize the father-offspring relationship since fathers don't get to spend as much time with their children due to having to earn a living. The fathers plan and implement activities in these two programs.

"Y-Pathfinders and Trailblazers" differ since the children govern the activities to give them a sense of responsibility, explained Ted Carpenter. He is on the Twin Valley YMCA board of directors. He is also a team captain with the organization.

Offering classes in yoga, judo, speed reading and much more is another Twin Valley YMCA specialty. They also provide a "Kinder-Gym" where small fry can learn to use large motor muscles.

Day camp programs are also available. Last year, Carpenter said the Twin Valley YMCA arranged through their Princesses program for 10 children to go to a day camp who otherwise would not have had the opportunity.

Other types of worthwhile activities and programs are also offered through the Twin Valley YMCA, he added.

He pointed out it costs an average of $40 per child for the child to participate in a program. He said a spokesman from the Alameda County Sheriff's Department told him it cost $14,000 a year to take care of one juvenile delinquent.

Funds raised by the Twin Valley YMCA are used to pay for food used at day camp and similar programs, for equipment, maintenance of facilities plus other operational costs.

Carpenter said all funds raised under the control of the Twin Valley YMCA board of directors "stay here" meaning within the jurisdiction of Twin Valley YMCA.

Greiner said if anyone was interested in more information, they could call Twin Valley YMCA office at 447-8300.

Valley Venturers to meet

PLEASANTON — The Valley Venturers are holding a meeting Wednesday, Feb. 15, at 7:30 p.m. in the Veterans Hall at 301 Main Street.

The newly formed culture club, sponsored by the recreation department, has 200 members with room for more.

Trips to the Shakespeare Festival in Ashland, Oregon, the Rose Parade in Pasadena and the J. Paul Getty Museum will be discussed at Wednesday's meeting. Refreshments will also be served.

Other events on the club's agenda include a Delta River Boat excursion and tours of Yosemite, the Hearst Castle and the King Tut exhibit due in San Francisco next year.

That's just the top of the list of planned outings. Those interested in joining the club can attend the meeting or call 846-3202, ext. 215, for more information.

Break for Livermore buses

LIVERMORE — The city may get four years of bus service instead of the originally planned 18 months. And it may cost nothing.

The transportation advisory committee last week heard details of a new policy by Metropolitan Transportation Commission (MTC) on granting 100 per cent funding through the first four years of a bus system. Funding would drop to 75 per cent in the fifth year and to 50 per cent for the sixth year of operation, said Ed Schilling, assistant city manager.

Schilling said Livermore may qualify because the policy applies to suburban communities that pay for rapid transit but receive little service. Livermore residents pay BART taxes, but receive only BART feeder bus service.

The transportation committee's proposal will go to the city council on Feb. 27. At that time the council also will hear the committee's recommendations on proposed bus stops along the five fixed routes and a suggestion of trying a system to allow people to flag down the buses in residential neighborhoods.

If the flagging system is used, Schilling explained, it would have to be set up where people would stand at corners in residential areas along the route and raise their hands to stop the bus. Schilling said the proposed flagging plan has not been discussed with the bus drivers yet and details would have to be worked out.

He said the final plan might include trying both the fixed bus stop and flagging methods along the various routes to see which worked better and received the better response of riders.

Acknowledging the difficulty of establishing bus stops in the residential areas, Schilling said the city would have to evaluate the system against the safety of riders.

The committee decided last week to sponsor a community contest to choose a bus system logo with a two-color design scheme for the city buses. The committee will meet with the design review and beautification committees on Feb. 28 to discuss the contest.

Schilling said that definite bus stops in the downtown area will be established, but specific spots have not been designated yet.

The original plan for the bus system, scheduled to start in June, was to run for 18 months and then put the question of bus service to the voters before spending any more money.

New home

This house at 4107 Nevis Street may be the new home for a Tri-Cities Ambulance crew, which left Pleasanton last summer for Livermore quarters. But the company must get a home occupation permit before moving the three-member crew and ambulance back to town. The planning commission denied one such permit last summer and granted a second permit application on the condition that the company spend $3,500 putting in a special garage and driveway for the ambulance. The company left the city then, claiming the price to stay was too high. The planning commission will consider this new permit application Monday, Feb. 27, at 7:30 p.m., 30 West Angela Street.

Median may be approved

LIVERMORE — The P Street median may become a reality if city council members approve the plans Tuesday night. The council will not be meeting on Monday because of the legal holiday, but will hold a regular meeting at 8 p.m. Tuesday at municipal court chambers on South Livermore Avenue.

The sandbags that cluttered P Street for a couple of months are gone now, and city staff will be reporting to the council that the trial barrier proved the most feasible.

Robert Lee, traffic engineer, said in a report to the council that public works department reviewed several traffic circulation patterns and channelization proposals as well as discussed the plan with businesses on the east side of P Street.

The developer and major tenants of the Arcade Shopping Center felt the traffic island was needed between Railroad Avenue and First Street for traffic safety and capacity considerations. The east side of P Street businesses agreed with the one median island opening opposite the Safeway driveway.

Lee said in his report that a possible solution to traffic congestion problem around the shopping center would be widening the existing driveway and encouraging use of the Railroad Avenue and First Street exits with directional signing to the parking lot.

Traffic loops which will change the lights to meet the traffic flow needs will be installed at P Street and Railroad Avenue. Lee said he hoped this would increase the level of service for both streets and encourage the use of the Railroad Avenue exit from the shopping center.

Still searching for the link to a family's fatal disease

Two years of reserarch and question — but no real answers yet.

Rose Silva

About two years ago, Rose Silva saw the story of her family hit the front page of the New York Times.

The Livermore woman was interviewed for national publications, and nightly newscasts featured her comments.

Mrs. Silva and her family had just been informed by genetic specialists that they were victims of a unique hereditary disease which had been killing relatives for generations.

At the time, scientists believed that members of the Silva family were perhaps the only ones in the world affected by what they termed Joseph's Disease, named for Antone Joseph, an ancestor first known to have had it.

In the two years since that first front-page story, Mrs. Silva has worked constantly to piece together the mystery of the disease which killed her father and her brother and still threatens her.

Last October, she helped found the International Joseph's Disease Foundation, headquartered in Livermore. She has contacted hundreds and hundreds of people of Portuguese-Azorean descent who may have the strains of disease in their own family. She's talked to many relatives she never knew she had — branches of the Antone Joseph family who have also lived with the deadly killer.

Times Lifestyle

Marie Felde

This month, the Foundation is holding a special drive to enourage support and help from businesses, organizations and clubs in the struggle to learn more about the disease.

Organizations or individuals who wish to donate time, money or materials to the organization can contact Mrs. Silva anytime at 455-0706 or 477-8620. Individuals who wish to find out more about Joseph's Disease are also urged to call the foundation at the above numbers.

"When I started, I only knew of two people who had the disease," she says. Now, she estimates that d 200 known people world-wide have been located who are afflicted. And there may be still many more who need help.

The disease is scientifically known as striatonigral degeneration, and has been found in those tracing their ancestry back to Portugal, specifically the Azore Islands, especially the island of Flores.

Doctors speculate that in 1845, a Portuguese sailor named Antone Joseph carried a defective dominant gene which would later spell death for relatives in all branches of his family, including three of his six children.

Mrs. Silva now has a family pedigree chart that stretches out some 21 feet, tracing branches of the family and the spread of the disease through generations.

Joseph's Disease "affects both sexes equally" and "does not skip generations," says Mrs. Silva. That means "each child of an afflicted person has a 50-50 chance of developing the disease."

Mrs. Silva herself faces the possibility, though in two years she has learned a lot about how the disease strikes. Contrary to the original theory, Mrs. Silva had located a few people with the disease who she cannot in any way trace to her own descendants.

Once, doctors also thought that symptoms began appearing before age 30 — but Mrs. Silva says some of those afflicted were not affected until their 60s.

"Every once in a while, we get a new lead," she says. Some of those leads have come from doctors travelling to Portugal, others have come from Portuguese communities in Redding, Petaluma, Massachusetts, Los Angeles and the Mother Lode area of California.

But through the years, the pieces have been hard to fit because of the "stigma" that went along with the disease. Doctors told Mrs. Silva's family that her father and brother had symptoms of syphilis. Though it was a mistaken diagnosis, family members still felt embarrased about their own afflicted relatives.

"The families that were afflicted were separated," Mrs. Silva says. Now, she adds, they are learning that it's a "devastating disease," but "nothing to be embarrased about."

The intent of the new foundation, she says, is to find out how wide-spread the disease is, and to conduct medical research into the problem. This has been done with the help of Dr. William Nyhan, a medical geneticist.

The group, of which Mrs. Silva is a board member, also tries to provide genetic counseling for families and conducts clinics to educate families on the disease. At the clinics, which are held throughout California, families can be tested and in some cases family trees are charted to track down possibilities and causes.

For Mrs. Silva, the work has become "a full-time volunteer job" which includes research, fund-raising and helping families with funds, providing medical and social services is also a goal. She is still at risk — could develop the disease — and has to live with that possibility. "There's despair there, but the ultimate goal is a cure," she says. "Knowing people are not alone — that helps," she says. The disease was "right there, but years ago the family never would have discussed the problem. For years, they've been praying for help." The Foundation now has 415 people on its mailing list, people who have been affected, family members, those who want to know more. Now, "what separated us in the beginning," Rose Silva says, "is bringing us all back together again."

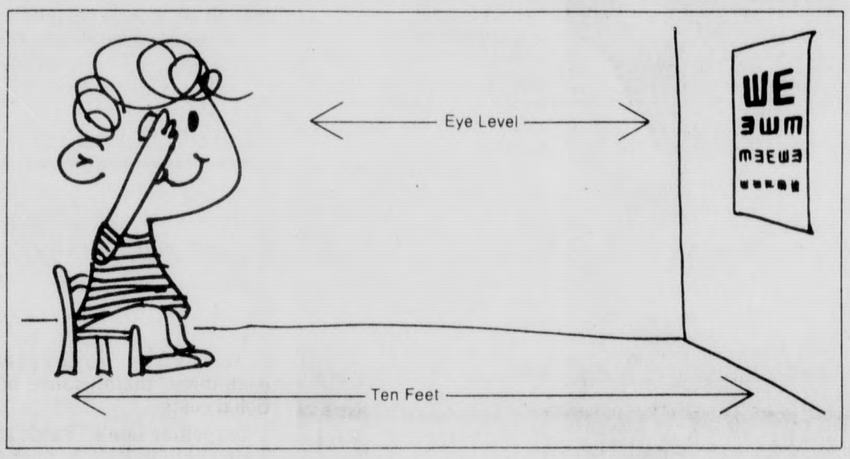
'Lazy Eye' session will train local volunteers



The Livermore Women's Club will sponsor a training session for persons interested in working as volunteers to screen preschoolers for lazy eye blindness on Wednesday and Thursday, Feb. 15 and 16.

Jean Bell, a nurse with the Northern California Society for the Prevention of Blindness, will train volunteers each day from 9:30 a.m. to noon at Holy Cross Church, 1020 Mocho St., Livermore.

It is estimated that one in every 20 preschool age children in the country has a vision problem. For those with lazy eye problems, discovery and treatment before school age is necessary, according to the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness.

Gertrude Gorland, who is coordinating the Livermore Women's Club screening program, said it is necessary to test a youngster's vision because, "they can't tell they are not seeing clearly, because that is the way they have always seen."

The screening program will begin with preschoolers at Holy Cross Church and expand to other preschool programs in the area. Mrs. Gorland also said that in the future the group hopes to provide a way for youngsters not attending organized classes to have their vision tested.

Mrs. Gorland has Home home eye test kits with instructions issued by the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness. Persons interested in attending the training session, or obtaining a vision test booklet for their own use can call Mrs. Gorland at 443-3698.

Newcomers

The Livermore Newcomers arts and crafts group will meet Wednesday, Feb. 22 at 9 a.m. at Kathy Kozman's home, 1543 Arlington Road, Livermore to start work on the jeweled Christmas tree hanging. Call Kozman at 455-1070 for more information.

Persons new to Livermore can call Carolyn Hoyt at 443-0293 for more information on the newcomers.

Feingold talk in Pleasanton

Many parents of hyperactive children throughout the country have found that their child's wild behavior can be controlled by an elimination diet called the Feingold Diet, which eliminates artificial colors and flavors, and other chemical additives.

The Feingold Association of Contra Costa is an organization of such parents who meet regularly to give one another moral support and to learn more about diet modification of hyperactive children.

On Feb. 18, at 2:30 p.m. at the Pleasanton Library on Black Avenue, there will be an orientation meeting for any interested persons who might like to join.

Sharon Davidson will speak, explaining the Feingold diet and what the organization has to offer these parents and their hyperactive children, and how they may join the organization.

Then on March 6, there will be a workshop put on by the Feingold Association, for members and for non-members who pay their membership that night, at the Natural Trading Company, 1987 Santa Rita Road, at 7:30 p.m.

All parents of hyperactive children are invited to attend the orientation meeting Feb. 18.

Dog classes scheduled

The Del Valle Dog Club of Livermore will hold a workshop Saturday, Feb. 25 at Robertson Park in Livermore.

There will be an obedience section from novice to utility classes with a second-chance ring. There will also be a general class on handling.

A special feature will be a workshop led by Jayne Langdon titled, "How to pose your dog for photos." A $1 fee will be charged for any photos taken.

Registration is 8:30 to 10 a.m. on the day of the event. Regular classes will be $3 per dog, per class and $1 for the secondchance ring. All dogs, including mixed breeds may compete. For more information, call Herb Baak at 443-2190.

Farberman will leave

Harold Farberman, for the past seven years music director and conductor of the Oakland Symphony Orchestra, announced that he would leave his post at the end of his eighth year in June 1979.

His purpose, he said, was to devote more time to increasing guestconducting opportunities here and abroad. The board accepted his decision, but have asked Farberman to accept the title of principal guest conductor and to return to the Oakland podium for a minimum of eight appearances.

Community

Workshop due on vandalism

DUBLIN — The Dublin San Ramon Services District (DSRSD) invites the general public to a Community Workshop on Vandalism at Shannon Community Center, 11600 Shannon Ave., Dublin, Feb. 16, 7 p.m.

Since vandalism is taking an increasingly big bite out of funds needed for schools and recreational programs plus facilities maintenance, the workshop was arranged.

Cooperating with DSRSD in the vandalism workshop are local school districts, sheriff's departments and interested individuals.

The workshop will include a brief film, a presentation by Hotline Inc., and round table discussions broken into small groups.

Members of the steering committee, school district staff, sheriff's department representatives and DSRSD staff will be present.

Planners queried

LIVERMORE — The two applicants for the planning commission vacancy will be interviewed by the city council prior to its Tuesday night meeting.

Neil Riley and Orlando O'Neil were the two applicants for the position vacated recently by Jim Sadler. Council members will meet with each candidate for 15 minutes, starting at 7:30 p.m. A decision is expected soon in filling the vacancy. Sadler asked to leave the commission after moving outside the city limits. His term will expire in September, 1979.

Engineers celebrate

What better way to celebrate National Engineers Week, Feb. 19 to 25, than to design a party that has continual motion. That is what the Livermore Valley Engineers' Wives have in mind for its progressive dinner Saturday, Feb. 18.

The Mexican progressive dinner is one of the annual events the wives coordinate to raise funds for equipment and materials to promote engineering in public schools.

The Engineers' Wives have presented encyclopedias, career and vocational resources, filmstrips, microscopes and a variety of other materials to local schools.

The Livermore chapter is one of five chapters in the state and is composed of women whose husbands works as engineers in the Valley.

.The women meet monthly with varied programs independant of the men's group whose funds go for scholarships to high school students.

Wives of engineers who are interested in more information on the Engineers' Wives can call Lois Krause, 443-1594 for more information.

Swim classes start

PLEASANTON — Swim classes start at the Aquatic Center on Black Avenue Monday and continue through March 3. Classes begin tomorrow at 11 a.m. and will be held Mondays, WednesdaYs and Fridays. Each class fee is $8.

Beginning swimming will be offered and lessons at the center will be offered through September. These early lessons will enable beginners to work up to swimming skills by summer. For registration information call 846-1720.

Course for CPR

SAN RAMON — A course for those persons wishing to become certified instructors in CPR (cardiopulmonary resuscitation) will be offered tomorrow, Wednesday and Friday at the Family Medical Center.

Individuals with current CPR certification are elgible. The class will meet in the lecture room of the center, located at 9260 Alcosta Blvd. at 7 p.m. The instructor is Tim Baird from the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory Fire Deapartment.

For further information, call 447-7000, extension 174.

Members of the Livermore Valley Engineers' Wives prepare for their annual Mexican feast. Shown here are Ana Maria Prado, Arleen Cavanna, Peggy Ludwig, Bonnie Kienzle, Pat Lundberg and Elsie Armstrong.

Where it stops?

The wheel of fortune? No, it's Spin-a-test, a teaching aide invented by Pleasanton resident Cecil Alberts. The spinner makes games out of elementary school subjects and is being used in several schools. Now you know. But don't tell anyone. Alberts' educational product will be used to puzzle panel members on the Liars Club television show aired on KTVU, channel 2. Show guests will try to figure the product out, aided by both facts and lies, Friday, Feb. 24, at 11 p.m. on Ch. 2.

Sheriff spurs plan to quell burglaries

The Alameda County Sheriff's Department has launched a widespread Operation Identification program in the county's unincorporated areas in an attempt to reduce residential burglaries.

Citizens are urged to participate in the program by making use of free engraving pens to mark their valuables with an identifying number.

The engraving pens will be available for loan free of charge at all full-time fire stations serving the unincorporated areas, which includes Dublin, Sunol, and some rural areas near Livermore and Pleasanton.

The pens will also be available at the Dublin Chamber of Commerce, 7996 Amador Valley Blvd., Monday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.; and at Dublin - San Ramon Services District headquarters, 7051 Dublin Blvd., Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Upon checking out the engraving pens, citizens will be given an instruction sheet and property inventory forms. When the pen is returned, two Operation Identification decals will be issued for display in a prominent place on the person's home.

Citizens who do not possess a California driver's license can obtain a California identification card from the Department of Motor Vehicles and mark their valuables with that identifying number.

Any other numbers, including Social Security numbers, should not be used because they are difficult or impossible to trace if stolen property is recovered.

The Operation Identification program will prove itself useful not only in recovering stolen property, but will provide a deterrant to crime as many burglars will not attempt to enter a home displaying those stickers. A law prohibiting possession of items whose identifying numbers have been scratched out deters many burglars from stealing or attempting to sell such merchandise.

For further information, call the sheriff's department at 577-1048. Dublin residents can call toll-free by dialing 881-1544.

County eyes rental ban on children

HAYWARD — Alameda County's planning commission will have a look at Supervisors John George's proposal to end discrimination against children in apartments Tuesday.

The commission will meet at 1:30 p.m. in the public works building, 399 Elmhurst.

George was prompted to suggest the ordinance after hearing about many large apartment complexes converting to "adults only" status and evicting families with children.

If adopted, the ordinance would apply only to the unincorporated areas of the county. George thought that such adoption would serve as a beacon to light the way for cities to adopt it, too.

Toy world gears up for Christmas '78

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

While most Americans are still worrying about the accumulation of bills from Christmas 1977, the nation's toymakers are busy planning for Christmas 1978. They are gathering in New York for their annual trade exhibition amid growing indications that the government will propose strict, new regulations on toy advertising aimed at children.

The manufacturers like to keep their new lines secret until the show officially opens on Monday, but consumers who want to get some idea of what will be in the stores next December can simply look at what's on their television and movie screens today.

Many of the new toys are expected to have tie-ins to popular shows and movies as they have in the past, with names like Farrah Fawcett-Majors showing up at department store counters as frequently as on the screen. Electronic games, which swept the market last year, are still big, according to a spokesman for the Toy Manufacturers of America Inc. Another trend cited by the spokesman: "family type games and toys."

Farrah's face will be on shelf

The microprocessor which has made possible computers in everything from sewing machines to automobiles, also is expected to appear in an increasing number of new toys and gadgets. One company promised three new electronic shooting games alone.

Last year's toy fair saw the introduction of 7,000 new items — a record. This year's show, with exhibitions by about 700 manufacturers, is expected to feature about 4,000 new products.

A key concern of the toymakers is the way in which they will be allowed to advertise their new products.

The Federal Trade Commission has been working on proposals to restrict children's advertising, particularly on television, and the food and toy industries are the key targets.

Aaron Locker of the Toy Manufacturers group was quoted in a trade publication recently as saying that he expected the FTC to come up with some firm proposals by the end of February. The industry group takes the position that no further regulation is needed. It notes that industry guidelines worked out in 1962 already prohibit manufacturers from trying to sell their toys by using such TV techniques as fantasy or animation. The toymakers code also prohibits the companies from urging children to ask their parents to buy them a particular product.

Some people, however, say that the self-regulation is not enough.

"All we hear from the industry is fierce defense of the First Amendment (guaranteeing the right of free speech), the nutritional blessings of sugar and the educational benefits of toys, and the technical complexities which attend any scheme of regulation," FTC Chairman Michael, Pertschuk aid at a recent conference of the American Advertising Federation.

"But I have heard very little talk of the central social and ethical concern which we have raised. At what age does a child in our society become a fit subject of commercialization?"

Some clues to the course the government may take came during a January meeting which was a part of a series on children's advertising sponsored by Georgetown University Law School and financed by the Ford Foundation. Tracy Westen, the FTC specialist on the subject, outlined a three-point package of possible proposals. The suggestions were:

— Ban all advertising on television programs with substantial audiences of children 6 or under. There was no definition of substantial.

Bikes in the hills

State hearings are scheduled in Livermore this month over a dusty, scarred 1,600-acre parcel in the hills outside Livermore.

The issue is whether California should purchase Carnegie Cycle Park for approximately $2 million and make it a state park for motorcycle enthusiasts. Purchase would be made with funds collected from the licensing of off-road vehicles.

A proposal to buy Carnegie is currently before the legislature. The California Trails Committee is coming here Feb. 23 and 24 to view the site, and elicit public opinion on the proposed state park.

Its backers say motor sports buffs from all of Northern California would benefit by the action. But how about Livermore?

Would a motorcycle preserve lure new crowds of people here, generate that much more dust and noise, and deepen the furrows that already pock the Carnegie landscape?

Possibly.

But the park is far enough removed from civilization that the nuisance would minimal. As for damage to the terrain, it's probably too late to worry about Carnegie, anyway. Bikers have been rumbling over the face of those hills for years, and at the risk of disturbing conservationists, the trails those riders ply aren't verdant.

The value in a state motorcycle park at Carnegie could be measured in surrounding Livermore landscape. Last spring The Times carried a series of disturbing articles, detailing the destruction of rural terrain by motorcyclists. Experts showed us how thoughtless riders are invading private property outside of town. They're careening down lush hillsides, carving ruts, causing erosion and destroying vegetation. In many cases the damage to plant life is irreparable.

Perhaps a state park at Carnegie would lure these renegade bikers away from their more fragile haunts. It's a point to be raised during this month's hearings. The sacrifice of already-scarred acreage for the safety of more treasured real estate may be fair exchange.

In the agreement, however, someone ought to insist on a strict police effort to keep the motorcyclists off forbidden land. Sixteen-hundred acres of riding land ought to be enough. Let's make sure they stick to the trails.

Water politics

Water is what the ranchers and cowboys fought over in the old days. At least that's what the movie westerns have told us. Somebody had it. Somebody else wanted it. They began blasting each other.

Today we've stowed the six shooters, but the fight over water goes on. If you don't believe that look back last week to the fight over that controversial peripheral canal bill in the state senate.

At no time since John Wayne made his first minute-westerns, have water politics been so charged.

Which brings up the election this June for seats on the Zone 7 Water District board of directors. Zone 7 of Alameda County's Flood Control District is the water wholesaler for most of the Valley.

Four positions on its seven member board are up for grabs, and the filing period for candidates comes up this week.

Zone 7 has never been the most glamorous of public agencies. Its name is forgettable, its meetings conducted in relative privacy, its rulings ignored by the public.

In this election year, however, it's time to take notice. The Zone is involved in issues of vital valley importance. With the spectre of drought still fresh, it's easy to understand how important water management policies have become. The Zone steered us away from rationing through its foresight. But now new decisions must be made on the supply and price of water.

Even more urgent are the issues of water reclamation and sewage disposal. The valley is under mandate to find new discharge methods. A consortium of valley agencies is working feverishly on the task.

Meanwhile, Zone 7 grapples with the question of jurisdiction, just how far it can go, if at all, in the reclamation business.

Though times have changed water politics here have the same impact they did for those Hollywood cowpunchers. Growth and development are dependent on solutions to water problems.

Qualified decision makers are needed to help Zone 7 formulate policy. An informed public is necessary to select the right candidates.

The week in retrospect

Bill with backbone

The California District Attorneys Association and its executive director George Nicholson are spearheading the effort to get a bill passed that would substantially strengthen The Uniform Determinate Sentencing Act of 1976, as outlined in Senate Bill 42.

The measure, SB 709 by Sen. Robert Presley and 19 legislative co-authors, is expected before the Assembly Criminal Justice Committee for a vote in March (Yes, the very same panel that in the past has been the "graveyard" of tough law enforcement legislation).

The CDAA, particularly since former Dublinite Nicholson took the reins, has been a leader in pushing for law enforcement legislation with "backbone."

Nicholson makes no bones about the importance of SB 709. "We believe it is the single most important criminal justice bill to face the legislature this year with any reasonable chance to pass." The bill would give added weight to The UDS Act of 1976 by extending terms, removing certain limitations on prison sentence enhancements, and by enacting a workable habitual criminal statute, to Nicholson's way of thinking.

Although the measure passed the Senate some eight months ago by a lopsided margin, it remains in the Assembly Criminal Justice Committee. "Its fate in that committee is uncertain," Nicholson contends, in making a plea for public assistance.

The main portion of the bill increases the base terms for 46 crimes involving crimes of violence and forcible sex offenses. In doing so, 709 creates prison sentences of 3-5-7 years, 4-6-8 years, 4-7-10 years, 5-8-11 years, and 6-9-12 years. According to the explanation sent by CDAA, the sentences are intended not only to lengthen the available prison terms for violent criminals, but also to provide broader and more meaningful discretion for sentencing judges in such cases.

Currently, no matter how many murders or other offenses a criminal commits, all sentences merge (run concurrently) with a life sentence, unless a death or life without possibility of parole sentence is imposed . Otherwise, the criminal is eligible for parole in seven years.

SB 709 would change that and permit life sentences or determinate sentences to be ordered served consecutively.

A third reason for supporting the measure, according to Nicholson, also deals with present law and what it "says" about the person holding a gun. "Only the person holding the gun can receive extra punishment for using the weapon. Under SB 709, all enhancements to prison sentences for use of weapons and infliction of injuries will apply EQUALLY to all participants in the crime, not just to the person wielding the gun.

Nicholson urges citizens in support of SB 709 contact their Assemblyman (Floyd Mori) and Senator (John Holmdahl) and request them in turn to contact members of the Assembly Criminal Justice Committee.

The latter would include Ken Maddy, chairman, and a prime GOP candidate for governor.

It will be interesting to see what Maddy (and his committee) does or doesn't do in this crucial state election year.

You can bet it'll be the most politically-expedientaction!

Help planned for farmers

WASHINGTON — In another legislative attemot to save the small farm and end "boom and bust" pricing' Reps. Richard Nolan, D-Minn. and George Brown, D-Calif., last week introduced legislation which Nolan predicted would help farmers reach their goal of farm prices at 100 percent of parity.

Farmers in the American Agricultural Movement, who have been "on strike" for the past seven weeks and have spent three weeks in Washington lobbying Congress and the Administration, are demanding full parity for their crops.

Parity is an index of purchasing power of farm goods based on prices between the years 1910 and 1914, when conditions were considerably better for farmers than they are today.

Striking farmers call parity their "minimum wage" — a government guarantee that their income will not drop below a set level. They want federally-mandated parity at the marketplace.

Nolan's bill doesn't go that far, but it comes close. It would raise the government loan rate for all major crops to 90 percent of parity. To qualify however, farmers would have to establish conservation programs and let the government control how much they can sell. The bill is co-sponsored by Rep. Brown, senior California Democrat on the House Agriculture Committee.

Under the federal government's crop loan program, farmers can "borrow" money from the U.S. using their crops as collateral. If' after a year, prices do not become more favorable to farmers, they can keep the money and the government keeps the crops. Otherwise, farmers repay the loan with interest.

The loan rate for each crop generally sets a floor under the market price.

Since 90 percent of parity is much higher than the current market price, the Nolan proposal would make the government's loan rate favorable for farmers and would raise the market price.

Consumer, however, are less likely to be pleased by such a plan. High loan rates invariably mean higher food prices since they force the U.S. marketplace to keep pace with the government loan rate.

Critics of parity prices also say they will cost the Treasury billions of dollars and price U.S. crops out of world markets — thus further hurting the U.S. balance of payments.

Nolan, however, insists that the higher prices are necessary if small farmers are to stay in business. The chairman of the House family farms subcommittee, he said that committee hearings have shown that: "good sized, efficient family farmers are leaving the land ... and small communities by the tens of thousands because government land policy, government price policy, government tax policy ... are designed to enhance larpe-scale farming operations whether individually or corporately owned, speculators, and middlemen and not farmers or consumers."

Nolan, bucking the conventional economic wisdom, also claimed that his bill would actually keep food prices down because it would "fight inflation."

It would assure consumers "a stable supply of food at reasonable prices in the supermarket," he contended, "by taking inflation out of the pricing system," and ending "boom and bust" pricing. The bill also authorizes federal price controls to prevent "unwarranted profit-taking."

Other provisions in the Nolan proposal include:

- A change in the tax law to benefit farmers who receive less than $100,000 in annual gross sales.
- Establishment of a Consumer Price Review Board to investigate "unwarranted increases" in food prices.
- stablishment of a "family farm preservation program" to help new farmers acquire farm land, prevent farm land from being acquired for non-agricultural purposes and bring more farmers into rural areas.
- Development of a "family farm service" within the Agriculture Department to develop national long-term farm planning aimed at redirecting U.S. farm policy toward a system dominated by family farms.
- Guarantee of favorable loans for marginal farms.
- Programs to provide training, education and demonstration programs for family farmers.

Nolan estimated his bill would cost the taxpayers $620 million a year, not counting crop loans.

He admitted it won't pass tomorrow: "I would be less than honest if I said it all could become law this year," he said. "But I believe a substantial portion has a good chance of becoming law, if not this year, then next," he added.

Council challenge

Editor, The Times:

Much has been said by our City Council Members on the Elected Mayor issue. I am confused by their past statements where they eem to change their views to fit the moods of the public. When the issue of the elected mayor was first put before the City Council they voted against allowing the initiative on the March ballot. As a result of this Council action a committee was formed of concerned citizens who proceeded to obtain the necessary signatures on petitions to put the question of an elpcted mayor on the ballot.

When the Council learned that the required number of signatures had been obtained with an excess of nearly 600, certain council members stated that had they realized the citizens felt so strongly about this issue they would have voted differently when the issue was first put before them.

Yet when Councilman Turner presented the petitions to the full Council for approval, the majority voted to not accept them as they stood but to send them to the County Clerk for verification, thus creating an expense to our City that could have been averted.

I realize that verification of signatures is a practiced procedure but in view of the fact that nearly 600 signatures over the required number were obtained the chances of the petitions not being valid were very slim.

It seems that what certain council members said in public statements and how they voted in Council Chambers are at direct odds.

As a result I feel that these council members owe the citizens of Livermore an explanation as to why there are discrepancies in their prepared statements to the press as opposed to their voting record at Council Meetings.

Becoming serfs

Editor, The Times:

Our State Assemblyman Floyd Mori was quoted in the local press on Tuesday, January 31, 1978, as saying "The Jarvis-Gann tax reform initiative is the most fiscally irresponsible measure to come before the elcetorate in many a year." I do say he does not have to great a memory but, this last election his colleagues gave the stamp of approval before the electorate to vote for a measure that would curtail property taxes for the elderly if they could not pay their taxes on their homes. In this manner they would not be forced from their homes. But! ! ! If the taxes were not paid they would be penalized and interest added to the delinquent taxes and who ever would inherit the property would have to make good the amount do on taxes to the government or the government would confiscate the property on back taxes owed them. And! ! ! The government didn't say that we the property owners would be taxed in proportion to help subsidize the taxes being lost by the elderly who are not able to pay their property taxes. So, in consequence we are being put in such a position that we are being priced out of our homes which, we thought at one time we could afford.

When one speaks about irresponsibility about someone else, I do question it. I do believe if we do not curtail and stop Big Government soon, we will all become Serfs and by that I mean our future will be controlled by our own government and the privileged influencial few. Our property taxes as well as all our other taxes have to be controlled by the people themselves so, we don't leave the door open to let government confiscate and control us as a nation. The Jarvis-Gann initiative is saying to the government "Show some fiscal responsibility." Don't spend more than you take in. In the end we will all profit by being able to have the initiativ to own our property if we please. "I do not want to be put in a position to become a Serf."

Jarvis plan

It's the beginning

Editor, The Times:

What is all the concern by the school districts about the proposed Jarvis Tax Bill? Thev seem to be implying that our children are going to suffer. It seems to me that they are already suffering if "Personnel costs are almost 80 percent of the districts budgets." Are they not really concerned about their own salaries?

I agree that if the Jarvis Bill is approved by the tax payers, that the cutbacks should begin in other areas such as special progran programs, studies, committees etc. Which are not necessary, but I don't think that it is justified that the school districts come on so strongly about their anticipated losses.

Maybe this will be the beginning for cut-backs in expenses for other povernment agencies. There has to be a beginning somewhere. How much more can the tax-payer take?

McCarthy may surprise

An undercurrent of reaction among Democratic politicians may catapault a surprise entry into the race for governor. Criticisms of Governor Jerry Brown's leadership, or lack of it, have been increasing among Democratic legislators for many months. Now, with their own survival at stake in the forthcoming elections, some counter action seems to be crystallizing.

If the dismal failure to develop an acceptable property tax relief measure was not enough of a catalyst, the public eruption of widespread dissension within the Brown administration appears to provide a last straw.

In any event there is a definite move to push Assembly Speaker Leo McCarthy into a challenge of Brown for the Democratic nomination for governor. It may be nothing more than wishful thinking on the part of a few. And it is yet to surface, being only something quietly talked about.

At first blush it would appear to be out of the question. For McCarthy has been more than supportive of Brown, he has been outright protective. So much so that he was scolded and warned by his colleagues in the closing days of last year's sessions to put more distance between himself and the governor.

Obviously cognizant that a Speaker can be unelected just as quickly as he can be elected, McCarthy has in fact withdrawn somewhat although he has refrained from direct criticisms of of the governor. An example of this change of attitude was seen in January when he stood by while the Assembly overrode two of Brown's vetoes.

Whether that can Be taken as an indication that McCarthy might be susceptible to overtures for him to enter the gubernatorial race is open to conjecture. McCarthy isn't saying. As it stands his position is the same as it was when he became Speaker later in 1974. Asked his plans he said "All I want is to be a good Speaker. I think there is a great opportunity to accomplish many things. I would like to be Speaker for about eight years."

That statement closed the doors to speculations about his seeking higher office in the immediate future And, while McCarthy is a sincere individual, much more so than many another politician, it remains that times and events change one's viewpoint.

Governor Brown has scoffed at questions about his using the governor's office merely as a stepping stone to the Presidency during his 1974 campaign. "If I'm elected I will devote the next four years to being a full time governor," he vowed, yet it has since been learned he was planning even then to run for President in 1976.

Since it is crystal clear that Brown, if reelected, will turn his full attention to running again for the Presidency in 1980, McCarthy would have a tremendous campaign advantage over Brown if he decided to contest him. For McCarhty can make the unequivocal pledge that he will never run for President under any circumstances thus assuring the voters of a full time governor. Further he can prove the irrevocable quality of that pledge. A native of New Zealand, he is precluded from becoming President.

It would take some strong persuasions to induce McCarthy to run for governor since it would mean not only giving up the Speakership but his Assembly seat as well. The other important factor is the time needed to put a campaign together. With barely more than 30 days before the close of filing, it would be cutting things short. Still, it is known that McCarthy has been toying with the idea of running for Lt. Governor or Attorney General and may have a campaign already planned. And, he has until March 10 to decide which way to jump.

Dr. Joyce Brothers

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I always wanted my daughter to be like the old-fashioned girl in crinoline. I'm disappointed because she's a far cry from that. She insisted on going into the Army and while I'm an Army man myself, it's the last thing I want for any daughter of mine. I don't like pushy women and when I look at her that's what I see. My wife says she's just a normal woman of today. My daughter and I do little but quarrel everytime we're together. Do you think there's anything I can do now that might change her and bring her around. N. A.

DEAR N. A.: I think if you'd try to see her point of view, if you'd try to be less critical and see her as an individual rather than as being male or female, she might feel less need to be assertive, at least when she's around you. What you see as pushiness may be her overreaction to your disapproval. Daughters who feel their father dislike them or wish they were something other than what they are usually find some way to rebel, even though this rebellion may be on a totally unconscious level.

Your daughter may be healthier and better adjusted that she would be if she fit your image of the "old-fashioned crinoline girl." According to recent studies by a Stanford University psychologist, super-masculine men and super-feminine women often lead unfulfilled lives. Persons who have the characteristics of both male and female can be assertive and as independent as the most virile of men and can also be tender, loving, and compassionate as the most feminine of women.

People who are either very masculine or very feminine miss out on a vital way of behaving in the real world because they will avoid doing things that are stereotyped as more appropriate for the other sex.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I know I have a drinking problem and I am trying to do something about it. I've been analyzing why I drink so much and I think one of the reasons is that I'm just terrified of getting old, even though I'm only 28. This fear hangs over me. Whenever I think of it, about the only thing I can do is move toward the nearest bar. I've lost two jobs because of my drinking, yet I can't seem to stop or help myself. A.B.

DEAR A.B.: If you've lost jobs because of your drinking and you feel it's controlling you, rather than you controlling the drinking, I strongly suggest you acknowledge your problem and go to Alcoholics Anonymous for the help you need.

I don't believe that removing your fear of aging is going to have any effect on your drinking problem at this point.

One of the threats of aging is the tendancy for others to lock the elderly into stereotypes and only expect certain types of behavior.

However, as a young man, you can start now to consciously fight against agism and remarks about the aging when you hear them. We will all eventually suffer from this kind of prejudicial thinking if it's allowed to go unchecked. Older people are often taught to believe that they're not capable of perfoming, that their productivity and ability as well as their sex life is over and that they should be seen and not heard, or preferably not even seen. We're very cruel to our elderly and we all suffer, even though many people are not as aware as you of how they suffer.

"UMMM...PARDON ME...."

Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — What is pancreatitis? Does it always end up in cancer? I really never knew about the pancreas, except that people with diabetes always had something wrong with it.

I have a friend who called me one Saturday. She said she did not feel so good and if it got worse, could I take her to the emergency room at the hospital. Of course, I rushed right over and her stomach was swollen. She did not go to the hospital but went to the doctor's office on Monday. Something was wrong with her pancreas. Anyway, I feel so ignorant about the entire thing. Could you inform me a little bit?

DEAR READER — Your pancreas is in some ways like your salivary glands under your jaw. It is located just under the stomach and the large end, called the head, is encircled in the very first portion of the small intestine as it joins the stomach.

The pancreas forms pancreatic juice, in large amounts, that drains through a duct into the small intestine. The opening of this pancreatic duct and the opening of the bile duct from the liver join together at the same spot to empty into the small intestine. That is why a stone in the bile duct may obstruct the pancreatic duct and block the normal drainage of the pancreas.

The juice from the pancreas is essential to normal digestion. It contains the necessary enzymes to break down fat, carbohydrates and proteins before they can be absorbed. No wonder then that anyone with pancreatic disease has trouble digesting food. In the absence of enzymes for digestion lots of food is lost because it is not absorbed. This leads to bowel problems, chiefly diarrhea and large foamy stools. And it may cause failure to absorb vitamins and minerals. The end result is often loss of weight and nutritional problems.

Because of the pancreas's vital role as a source of enzymes, I have entitled The Health Letter number 11-4, The Pancreas: Your Enzyme Organ. I am sending it to you. Others who want information on the pancreas can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 326, San Antonio, TX 78292.

The pancreas may be inflamed as an acute process, called acute pancreatitis and this may cause swelling of the abdomen with pain resulting in a picture that suggests an acute surgical condition. One good reason to make the right diagnosis in this instance is to avoid an unnecessary operation.

It can also be chronically affected resulting in a chronic problem in enzyme production.

In addition, the islets of Langerhans where the insulin is formed can be damaged as a result of pancreatitis or from other causes. The damaged islets fail to produce enough insulin, and diabetes results.

AQUARIUS (Jan.20-Feb.19) Customers will have little sales resistance when you give them the pitch today. Your charm and enthusiasm work like a one- two punch.

PISCES (Feb.20-March 20) There is a strong possibility you may benefit materially from two different sources today. One channel will be completely unexpected.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You'll be in a rather jovial mood to begin with today, but you'll be even more entertaining when attractive members of the opposite sex are around.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) The percentages for getting a favorable response are on your side today regarding requests you make for career or financial assistance.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Conditions in general are extremely promising for you today. You're especially lucky at things you inaugurate or promote.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Pieces that wouldn't go together yesterday will seem to blend quite magically today. Make your move now if something big is on the burner.

LEO (July 23-Aug.22) Things have a way of working out today, so hang loose. Frustrations will be robbed of their power if treated philosophically.

VIRGO (Aug.23-Sept.22) If something can be changed for the better through a sensible adjustment where work is concerned, don't just study the situation, act on it.

LIBRA (Sept.23-Oct.23) Everyone is your ally today. You'll make all you deal with feel important. You're the type of partner they'll want to hook up with.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov.22) Even though you may be in a playful mood today you'll drop whatever you're doing if you see ways to utilize your efforts for something profitable.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov.23-Dec.21) The party won't really get rolling until you put in an appearance. You have the gift for lifting the spirits of others today.

CAPRICORN (Dec.22-Jan 19) Lady Luck tends to favor you today in matters where dollar signs are involved. She's anxious to see that you get a slice of the pie.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

Today's hand was played by James Chew of Tulsa, Okla., in the Nashville regionals.

The first interesting thing about the hand is North's bid of the grand slam after finding that Jim held no kings.

He decided that Jim needed eight diamonds to jump to four with two aces and no kings. Therefore, the king of trumps would drop. That allowed North to count 12 sure tricks. The 13th would come if Jim held two clubs or the queen of spades.

A diamond to dummy's eight, a heart ruff, a diamond to dummy's seven and a second heart dropped East's queen of hearts.

Now Jim ran all his trumps. Dummy's last four cards were the ace-king-nine of spades and the jack of hearts. West's were the queen-10-seven of spades and king of hearts. He had to chuck a spade on that last trump.

The jack of hearts was discarded and dummy's spades took the last three tricks. A lucky squeeze, but made possible by the play of three rounds of hearts.

As you can seen Jim held just one club and the queen of spades was conspicuously absent from his hand, but that did not stop Jim from taking all the tricks.

The first three tricks went to the ace of clubs, ace of diamonds and ace of hearts.

Elderly push for 'Bill of Rights'

LIVERMORE — The Livermore Senior Center wants to help a television crusader write a new "bill of rights" for senior citizens.

Lillian Snorf, director of the center, wants to enlist the public's help in backing the crusade for extension of such things as hot meals and home care service to many more senior citizens than get them now.

Evan White of KGO - TV is leading the push and he has done some documentaries on the material shortcomings in Bay Area senior citizens' lives. He thinks his cruasade will help alleviate some of those things he sees as deficiencies.

It may take five years or more to get Congress to pass White's proposals, said Snorf, but now is the time for seniors — and those younger who will be in their position sooner than they think — to start working for the legislation.

White wants the federal government to provide the elderly and handicapped residing in federally - funded public housing with a complete line of services, including housekeeping aid, meals service, personal assistance, ambulatory health care, and "other services essential for maintaining independent living."

White also would have each housing project tha include a facility for hot meal preparation and for community day health care services. Those facilities also would serve seniors and handicapped outside the housing project.

The goal is also to assist "frail or impaired elderly and/or handicappped persons in order to keep them independent and remaining in their own homes where possible."

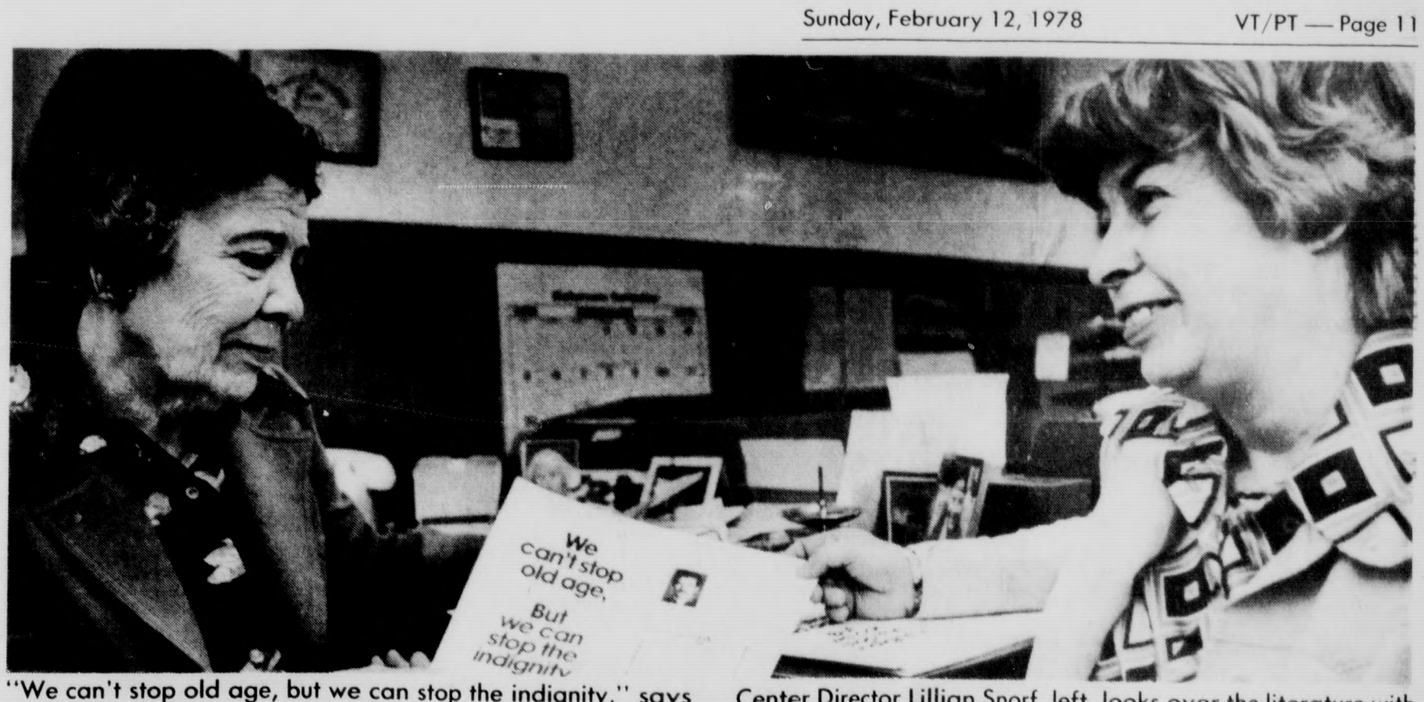
Snorf has sheets of eight "coupons", small cards which bear the legend, "I am angry and shocked at the life our aged live and what waits in store for most of us. I want to see legislation enacted to insure a dignified life for the aged in America."

A person can sign his or her name after that statement and mail it to White or a political representative.

Snorf will hand out the coupons at the senior center, 2466 - 8th St., from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

"Even people not yet in the senior citizen age range should be thinking about when their later years come. With inflation, we'll have to live on incomes much lower than we expected. You never know what's in store for you," she said.

— by Ron McNicoll



"We can't stop old age, but we can stop the indignity," says some of the literature in Evan White's campaign to get more federally-funded services for senior citizens. Livermore Senior Center Director Lillian Snorf, left, looks over the literature with secretrary Ann Whiting.

Book on Dublin ready soon

DUBLIN — Virginia Bennett's book, "Dublin Reflections",will be available on or after Feb. 14, according to a spokesperson from Friends of the Dublin Public Library.

Bennett is Dublin's historian and head librarian at Dublin Public Library. She also received Citizen of the Year award for 1977.

The book was published by Mill Creek Press of Union City, Ca. It was financed by Friends of the Dublin Public Library.

As a community service, the book will be sold at cost for $3.95 including sales tax. Two books will be donated to each school in the Murray Elementary School District and to Dublin High School.

Books may be purchased from Bennett at the Dublin Public Library. Or they may be bought by mail from Alice Pitchford, 7700 Bonniewood Court, Dublin, Ca. 9V566. (Mail orders need an additional 50 cents for postage and handling charges.)

If an autographed copy is desired, the book must be taken to Bennett.

Surprised

WASHINGTON (AP) — William H. Webster says he was surprised that the Senate confirmed him as the new FBI director as quicky as it did Thursday.

"You're really catching me without a prepared statement," he told a reporter in St. Louis. "I feel really good...I'm very gratified."

Webster, 53, a federal appeals court judge in St. Louis, succeeds Clarence Kelley, who is retiring.

Inflation on its way back

WASHINGTON (AP) — New price increases by wholesalers are threatening to start a new surge of inflation, government figures indicated Friday.

Although the prices paid for products by retailers didn't change much last month, big increases showed up in the earlier stages of production. These increases are usually passed on to consumers eventually.

The Labor Department's finished goods index, which measures the price of consumer goods and heavy equipment before they reach retail stores, rose 0.6 percent in January. That showed little change after rising 0.5 percent in December and 0.6 percent in both November and October.

Consumer goods, measured alone, rose 0.7 percent after going up only 0.4 percent the month before.

However, intermediate materials — those goods which are about halfway through the production stage — rose 0.9 percent after rising no more than 0.4 percent in each of the last eight months.

And crude materials, such as mining and farm products, rose 2 percent, the fourth monthly increase after five consecutive months of declines. Raw food — food at the farm — rose 2.8 percent, while nonfood materials were up 1.4 percent.

"A more rapid pace of inflation was particularly pronounced among intermediate materials, partly because the unusually high level of residential construction activity resulted in higher prices for most construction-related products," the department's report said. This development could mean new houses will become more expensive.

Food prices paid by supermarkets went up 1.1 percent in January. This was the largest increase in this index in eight months except for a 1.2 percent rise in November.

Unlike last year, when rising food prices made the biggest contribution to inflation, the increases in January covered a wide range of products. Price increases accelerated for passenger cars, jewelry, household appliances, furniture and sporting goods.

Auto prices are going up because imported cars are becoming more expensive, said Craig Howe, a Labor Department economist. This results in domestic car makers also raising their prices.

Some of the increases may have come from business' decision to raise prices at the start of the year, although the figures are adjusted for seasonal variations in an attempt to take care of such factors.

The price index for all wholesale commodities rose 0.9 percent, the biggest rise since April.

The department is trying to phase out this measurement, which it once used heavily, because the index often exaggerates inflation by counting increases more than once. It now is relying on the producer price index, which measures finished goods just before they reach retailers. The producer price index now stands at 186.8, meaning that wholesalers charged 186.80 for products that brought $100 in 1967.

Soviet oust

OTTAWA (AP) — Canada threatened the expulsion of more Soviet diplomats if Moscow kicks out Canadian personnel in retaliation for the banning of 13 alleged Soviet spies.

Announcing the crackdown on one of the largest spy rings reported in Canadian history, External Affairs Minister Don Jamieson told the House of Commons Thursday the government would retaliate on a "one-for-one basis" if Canadian personnel were expelled from the Soviet Union.

Jamieson said four of the 13 Soviet officials were ordered to leave the country by next Monday, seven were given until Feb. 23 to get out and two who are out of the country will not be allowed to return.

The Russians, who were accused of trying to get information on security.

Foothill scholars

Four Foothill High School students received Bank of America Achievement Award plaque recognition Friday. Plaque winners who qualify to go on to the National Bank of America Achievement Award competition were chosen from four general fields; fine arts, liberal arts, science and mathematics, and vocational arts, by the scholarship and awards committee of Foothill High School. In order to be considered for plaque winners a student must have an overall grade point average of 3.0 ("B") and have completed 30 semester credits in their respective general fields. Foothill plaque winners, from left, gathered with principal Richard Carroll, are Cathy Rodgess, vocational arts; Tony Zavanelli, science and math; Steve Blair, fine arts; Diane Look, liberal arts.

Watson's 66 ties for Hope lead

PALM SPRINGS — Tom Watson, the top money winner of 1977, shot a 6-under-par 66 Saturday to tie unheralded Bill Rogers, the second day leader, after the third round of the flood-delayed 90-hole Bob Hope Desert Classic.

Watson, playing in the same foursome with former President Gerald R. Ford and host Bob Hope at Indian Springs, had six birdies in missing only one green to post a 54-hole total of 203, 13 under par.

Rogers, playing at La Quinta, considered the toughest of the four courses used in the $225,000 tournament, shot a 5-underpar 67 after which he said, "I was very fortunate to shoot a 67. My putting saved me.

"It seemed like when I wanted to make a putt I did," he said. "I didn't drive the ball well or hit the irons as well as I did the other day, but I never got into real bad trouble."

Only 1 stroke behind the two leaders was Jerry McGee, who had a 7-under-par 65 at Bermuda Dunes even though he said, "I'm playing horrible."

His score tied for the low round on the day.

Mike Morley also posted a 65.

Peter Ousterhuis, picking up a 68 at Eldorado, was 3 strokes behind Watson and Rogers at 206 while Danny Edwards, shooting a 69 at Eldorado, was 4 strokes behind.

Watson, winner of the Tucson Open and the Bing Crosby earlier this year, continued to complain about his driving, but said his putting was excellent.

'I drove the ball well up until the about the 11th hole and didn't hit a fairway from the 11th hole on," said Watson. "But I was fortunate on the 17th and 18th to have shots."

He said his shot on 17 hit a tree, but dropped down so that he had a shot and on 18 he drove into a group of trees but the ball went through and he was able to see the green.

He birdied both holes, making a 35-footer on the 17th and a 20-footer on the 18th.

"It could have turned around with a bad break there," he said.

Cedeno gets big offer

HOUSTON — Houston Astro center fielder Cesar Cedeno has been offered the biggest contract in baseball history, the Houston Chronicle reported Saturday in a copyrighted story.

But Cedeno has yet to agree on the pact, and Astro general manager Tal Smith said he will try to trade Cedeno unless he signs a contract soon.

Cedeno is one of only two Astros who, under baseball rules, can refuse to sign a 1978 contract and become a free agent next October after the end of the season.

Despite the big contract offered Cedeno, Smith said it will be "very, very doubtful" Cedeno will be in an Astro uniform on the April 6 opening day if the player hasn't signed by then.

"We can't force anyone to sign unless he has an inclination to want to stay here. We've been in negotiations with Cesar for a long time. They've been tough, long negotiations," Smith said. "We would like very much to have his services here, hopefully throughout his career. But he's got to make a determination as to whether he wants to play here or test in the free agent market."

Smith called the contract offered Cedeno "the most significant" in the history of baseball," according to Chronicle baseball writer Harry Shattuck. "That includes not only money but also other conditions."

Asked whether the monetary value alone off the proposed contract is higher than any previously publicized major league agreement, Smith replied: "I'm sure it is."

Several existing and publicized contracts have totaled more than $3 million.

Mahre leads an inspired pack of non - Europians

CHAMONIX, France — American and Canadian skiers had a field day in two snowswept World Cup races Saturday, beating the entire world elite in a downhill and special slalom on the same day.

Phil Mahre, 20, of White Pass, Wash., twice defeated Sweden's world champion, Ingemar Stenmark, and the Austrian, German and Swiss stars to take both heats of the special slalom by a margin of more than 1½ seconds.

Earlier in the day, Canada's Ken Read and his countryman, Dave Murray, took first and second place in the downhill race, leaving Austrian world champion Josef Walcher far behind in fifth place.

It was the American team's first slalom victory of the season, but Mahre remained in third place in the World Cup standings behind the unbeatable Stenmark and Austrian Klaus Heidegger.

"I trained pretty aggressively before the race," Mahre said after his decisive victory. "After I took the first heat, I knew I had nothing to lose and everything to win. So I skied the second run pretty hard. It was an easy course but a long one."

U.S. men's Coach Harald Schoenhaar said Mahre's race proved that he could beat Stenmark in the slalom. "It's a pity he fell in the slalom race in the World Championships in Garmisch," he said. "I feel sure he could have taken the world title."

For the two Canadians it was the biggest national triumph in any race since the World Cup was inaugurated in 1967 and the first Canadian victory in any World Cup race for two years.

Read, 22, of Calgary won the 3,622-meter-long race, 16-hundredths of a second ahead of Murray, 24, of Vancouver. Both were far down the standings in the World Cup.

Jumping for no joy

Dublin High's Kurt Vollbrecht is high above Steve Robison of Granada on this play, looking for an open man under the basket. Vollbrecht's mates lost a close 62-60 decision to the Matadors in East Bay Athletic League basketball play Friday. For details on all the games, see page 14.

49ers add 3 coaches

SAN FRANCISCO — Coach Pete McCulley of the San Francisco 49ers added three new assistants, all with previous National Football League experience, to his staff Saturday.

Dan Radakovich, who will be the 49ers' defensive coordinator and linebacker coach, has been with the Pittsburgh Steelers the past four seasons, Jim Carr comes from the Buffalo Bills' staff and Floyd Reese is moving from the Detroit Lions.

Carr, who played in the NFL 10 years, will be the 49ers' defensive backfield coach. Reese will handle special assignments, said McCulley, who has now hired six assistants and seeks two more

Heiden on top again

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. — Eric Heiden, the defending champion from Madison, Wis., swept two races Saturday and took a commanding lead in the men's World Sprint Speed Skating Championships.

Eric's sister, Beth, won the 500-meter race and took second in the 1,000 meters, giving her the overall lead in the women's division halfway through the championships.

Eric, 19, who won the junior world title in Montreal, was timed in 38.22 seconds over the 500-meters and clocked 1:17.47 over the 1,000 meters, nearly two seconds ahead of his nearest competitor. The victories gave Heiden 76.955 points with two races remaining, clearly ahead of the field and unbeatable unless he should fall on Sunday.

Beth, 18, who combined with her brother a week ago for a brother-sister sweep in the world juniors clocked 42.97 in winning the 500 meters and was second to Kim Kostron of St. Paul, Minn., in the 1,000. Kostron was timed in 1:28.77 and Beth in 1:29.16. Beth had 87.550 points going in to Sunday's races while Kostrum vaulted from fourth after the 500 meters to second overall with 88.205 points.

Eric — who won all three world titles last year, the juniors, the sprints and the allaround — skated the 1,000 meters alone after Dutchman Meil Govaert fell in the first corner, yet he handily defeated Terje Andersen of Norway, who was second in the 1,000 in 1:19.45. Third in the 1,000 was another Norwegian Kai Arne Engelstad in 1:19.51.

Frode Ronning of Norway was second in the 500 meters in 38.54 but fell off the pace with a 1:20.68 clocking in the 1,000 when he almost fell on the third corner.

Ronning's slip enabled countryman Engelstad to move into second overall after tying for fifth in the 500 at 39.06. Engelstad had 78.815 overall points.

Second to Beth in the 500 was Soviet Liubov Sadchikova, called "Truck" by her teammates, in 43.32. Connie Paraskevin of Detroit was third in 43.36. In the 1,000, Sadchikova fell back to fourth in 1:29.94 and dropped to third overall with 88.290 points. Fourth overall was Haitske Vallentijn of The Netherlands with 89.090 points after finishing fifth in the 500 (43.85) and seventh in the 1,000 (1:30.48).

Assume EBAL command

Amador plunks Dublin, 1-0

Friday afternoon's critical East Bay Athletic League soccer match between Amador Valley and visting Dublin was all it was cracked up to be.

Eighty minutes of exciting action,with a lot of it around the goalie nets.

But the contest was decided with just 15 minutes gone in the contest.

Amador Valley's Greg Oxsen headed in a five-yard shot off an assist from Marty Espinoza to give the Dons a 1-0 win and move them one step away from the EBAL title.

All the Dons have to do to take the EBAL crown is to defeat a mediocre Monte Vista squad Tuesday in Danville. If they win or tie the Mustangs they gain a berth against Catholic AthleticLeague champion De La Salle.

Oxsen's goal came after a free kick. Dublin goalie Rusty Allen deflected the ball back and Espinoza belted the ball to Oxsen who then kicked it in straight ahead.

The rest of the game saw both teams blow chances to score, but it was particulary frustating for the Gaels.

Dublin failed to score on two penalty kicks and a wide-open net.

With three minutes left in the first half AV goalie Dave Kinney had come out of the net briefly and the Gaels fired a shot in that was brillantly deflected by the Dons' Steve Englebrick. A minute later Jorge Garrett of Dublin kicked the ball about a foot wide of the sidebar from the left side.

Despite Oxsen's goal Amador Valley was a bit sluggish on offense in the first period. Dublin was successfulat controlling the ball at midfield or in AV territory.

But the second half saw the Dons assert themselves more on offense as they kicked 10 of their 14 shot attempts in that period.

The second half saw more wide-open play by both teams as the Gaels had eight of their 12 shots in the half.

Falcons scare, though

Dons still share first

Foothill High's basketball team tried its hardest to give the other half of the East Bay Athletic League leadership equal time, but Amador Valley rallied in the second half to take a 54-47 win over the Falcons in Pleasanton Friday night.

The Falcons, who upset Livermore Tuesday, seemed determined to make life rough for yet another "powerhouse" and stayed even with the Dons, 30-30, at halftime.

But Amador outscored Foothill 24-17 in the second half to take the win and set up Wednesday's showdown with Livermore, the winner most likely to become the round - robin EBAL champ.

Amador improved its record to 10-2, while the Falcons dropped into a last place tie with Dublin at 3-9. However, Foothill is a changed team from its 0-7 start and last week's results bear it out.

Foothill held a 38-35 lead late in the third quarter when Amador put together an offensive string that eventually propelled them to victory.

Both teams stayed well within each other's scope in the first half, neither club gaining a lead of more than five points.

The late third - quarter spurt by the Dons started on a Rick Howard jumper which pulled the Dons to within a point, and guard Paul Campana added a pair of jumpers to counter Foothill's Rick Rosenbach's field goal as the Dons held a 41-40 advantage. Campana added another bucket at the end of the stanza to give the Dons a 43-40 lead heading into the final period.

Campana and Howard added field goals at the outset of the quarter to give AV a 47-42 lead, but Foothill came right back to within a point, 47-46, on buckets by Rosenbach and Steve Michell.

Amador slowed the pace and worked for a good shot against the Foothill zone, finally getting it on a short jumper by Howard after nearly three minutes of ball control.

Chris Kearns added a pair of free throws with 40 seconds left to seal the Amador win.

Rosenbach led all scorers with 20 points, but no other Falcon reached double figures.

Campana, Kearns and Howard all scored 12 points for the well - balanced Dons, while Ken Noble added ten points.

Farfan charges up 'Pokes

The electrifying play of John Farfan was shorting out inthe first half, but the 5-8 Livermore guard more than made up for the power failure after halftime.

Behind Farfan's 12-point third quarter performance, Livermore High overcame a 21-17 California halftime lead and went on to paste the Grizzlies 58-42 to remain in a first place tie with Amador Valley in East Bay Athletic League play Friday night.

Farfan connected on five field goals and a pair of free throws during the period, and finished the night with 20 points after being held to a single field goal in the first half.

"It's a good thing he did," said Cowboy coach John Erceg of Farfan's explosion. "He's better when the game goes fast."

And for Erceg and crew, the pace was not up to tempo in the first half which saw the Grizzlies, determined to send the 'Pokes down to defeat for the second straight time, utilize a decent fast break of their own in rolling up an 18-10 lead late in the second quarter after a methodical, 6-6 first period.

Chuck Cary, Cal's smooth forward, scored nine in the half to lead the charge, while guard Daryl Lamb added five points in the second quarter alone to help out.

However, those were all the points Lamb scored on the night, and Erceg commended Jim Rogers on a fine defensive job. "He (Rogers) doesn't always show up in the box score, but he plays hard defense," the coach pointed out.

Livermore finally went back ahead with midway through the third period when Farfan and John Bachleda each sank jumpers to vault the 'Pokes into a 27-25 lead. An 11-1 string of points over the final five minutes put the Cowboys ahead 36-28.

Livermore increased the lead to 55-36 in the fourth quarter, as Dick Patterson scored eight of his game's 13 points in the stanza.

While the Cowboys will work this week for their showdown with Amador in Livermore — both squads have 10-2 records — California still has a shot at the playoffs. The 5-7 Grizzlies trail fourth - place Monte Vista by one game and have Dublin and Amador coming up in the final week, with the Amador game a home contest.

Mats win depleted battle

Dan Lambert scored a season - hioh 32 points to lead Granada High past Dublin 62-60 Friday and take sole possession of third place in the East Bay Athletic League basketball race.

Lambert pumped home 13 field goals and sank six free throws to produce his finest effort this year, and it couldn't have come at a better time for coach Pat Fracisco's troops.

Granada played without the services of 6-4 center Scott Morton, who sat out with a twisted ankle and whose status is questionable for the rest of the year.

Dublin had their roster problems, too, losing a pair of players during the week for academic reasons. Still, the Gaels gave the Mats a hard fight after almost being blown out of the gym in the first half.

Jeff Magathen played his finest pame of the year and scored 16 points to lead Dublin, while Jeff Barnes popped in 14 markers and Dane Seropian hit for 13.

After Lambert, only Steve Robison scored in double figures for the Matadors, netting 11.

Granada ripped out to leads of 12-2 and 16-6 in the first quarter, but the Gaels rallied to close the gap to 20-16 bia the free throw line. Dublin hit on eight charity tosses and got the Mats in early foul trouble.

Dublin managed to tie the game early in the second quarter at 22-22, but Lambert hit on a trio of drives and added two free throws down the stretch to vault the Mats into a 32-27 halftime lead.

Dublin came back out in the third quarter to tie the game again, but Lambert scored ten points over the last part of the period to put the Mats up 50-46 going into the final stanza.

This time it was Granada's turn to receive charity, as they connected for eight straight free throws down the stretch to preserve the two - point win.

The Mats are 7-5, and have games with San Ramon and Foothill remaining on their schedule. Dublin fell into a last place tie with the Falcons at 3-9, and encounter San Ramon and California in their final league tilts.

Wolves foul way past 'Stangs

DANVILLE — A frantic fourth quarter Monte Vista comeback, that included 12 unanswered points in less than a minute, fell short Friday night as the Mustangs dropped a 64-56 East Bay Athletic League decision to rival San Ramon.

Despite the loss, Monte Vista maintains its one-game cushion for the fourth and final playoff berth with just one week left after fifth-place California lost to Livermore Friday night.

San Ramon held a commanding 63-43 lead with just 1:42 remaining in the game, but the Wolves stood by and watched their hosts reel off three baskets and a half dozen free throws to cut the lead to eight at :57.

The visitors finally decided to stall the clock away and escaped with their fourth victory in twelve starts. The Mustangs now stand at 7-7.

Mike Campbell's twelve third period points helped San Ramon break a 25-25 halftime deadlock as the Wolves raced to a 50-36 lead at the start of the fourth period.

The Wolves blistered the nets in the third stanza, connecting on eleven of 14 attempts from the field, while Monte Vista hit only five buckets and a lone free throw.

The onslaught continued into the final quarter, as San Ramon built a 20-point bulge on fast breaks by Campbell and Darrin Johnson.

The Mustangs slumbered until Marty Levy converted a three-point play with 1:29 left, sparking the home team and the packed gymnasium into visions of a miracle comeback.

San Ramon accommodated Monte Vista's two-minute offense by refusing to sit on their lead. Instead they launched 20-foot shots and gave the Mustangs a sporting chance.

A 15-foot jumper by Ted Helgans brought Monte Vista to within eight at :57, but San Ramon finally decided to stall the clock out and their four-corner offense did the trick.

Five players fouled out of the physical contest including Mustang starter Mike Shepanek just five seconds into the last period.

Mike Campbell led all scorers with 24 points, while Johnson added 15 for the Wolves. Randay Woods hit 16 for Monte Vista, assisted by Jack O'Neill's nine tallies, but the pair notched only eight in the second half.

Amador nears title

Both Allen and Kinney were outstanding in the nets. Although there weren't that many shots on goal by either team, each goalie had seven saves. Allen made an outstanding save to prevent an AV goal in the first half when he dove to the ground and garnered in a shot attempt while laying on his side.

Don coach Mike Geib was calm in victory, praising both teams.

"Dublin has an excellent passing team and they're very quick," he said. "They're not the most physical team in the league, but they don't have to be because they're smart.

"We were kind of flat in the first half," he went on. "But we came out in the second half and did a better job ovrall."

Amador Valley is now 11-1-1 in EBAL play while the Gaels are 11-2-1. If Monte Vista upsets the Dons Tuesday both AV and Dublin would share the crown. However, Dublin would gain the playoff berth against De LaSalle because it has outscored Amador Valley in head-to-head meetings. The Gaels defeated the Dons 3-0 in their first game.

The playoff game against the Catholic champions is tentatively set for Friday on the EBAL winner's field.

In the junior varsity game Amador Valley and Dublin fought to a 1-1 tie.

In other EBAL action Friday, Granada and Foothill fought to a 1-1 standoff and San Ramon came up with their first point of the year in a 4-4 tie with Livermore,breaking a 13 - game losing streak.

Armstrong fouls out of drag races

POMONA — Semi-pro driving champion Dale Armstrong of Torrance, Calif., was one of the casualties Saturday as competition resumed in the rain-delayed 18th annual National Hot Rod Association's Winternationals drag races.

Armstrong, a winner nine times on the NHRA's championship circuit, was guilty of a foul start and automatically disqualified in his first-round heat against Gregg Bellemeur of Arcadia, Calif.

Amrstrong, winner of the 1974 Winternationals, wasted the second fastest elapsed time of the event — 6.67 seconds — with the foul.

Bellemeur was one of the 16 Pro Comp drivers advancing to Sunday's final eliminations in the $326,800 event at the Los Angeles County Fairgrounds. The finals were originally scheduled for last Sunday.

Drivers in Top Fuel, Funny Car and Pro Stock took advantage of Saturday's half-day of racing to make late adjustments for Sunday's finals.

Rob Bruins of Federal Way, Wash., posted the best practice mark among the Top Fuel competitors with a quarter-mile time of 5.97 seconds and a finishing speed of 240 miles per hour.

Among the Funny Car entries, Gordie Bonin's Pontiac turned in the top time of 6.27 seconds.

AV girls two up

Amador Valley High's girls basketball team has a solid two-game lead in the East Bay Athletic League race as a result of Foothill's 54-53 upset of Dublin Thursday night.

The Gaels' loss dropped them two games behind Amador Valley. The Dons, who defeated Granada 55-28 Thursday, have a 10-0 mark while Dublin is now 8-2.

Other games Thursday night saw Livermore topple Monte Vista 59-49 and California roll over San Ramon 57-43.

A 34-point effort by Joanne Callender went all for naught for Dublin as Foothill had three players in double figures.

Chris Rhodes led the Falcons with 21 points. Chevelle Stevenson added 14 markers and Kim Iverson 10 for the winners.

CaLlender missed a jumper with five seconds left and Foothill had its upset win.

Amador Valley got 16 points from Marian Hagler and 10 from Jayne Kuhns in its easy victory over Granada.

P.J. Moore hit for 21 points and Marcie Smith added 14 for California.

Patty Shirley canned 23 points and Kim Bohannon 16 for Livermore as the 'Pokes built a 15-ooint halftime lead in the first half and cruised in for the win.

Roominess and convenience are blended in Greenleaf homes in Tracy starting at $47,990.

Four-bedroom plan is the big seller

A four bedroom floor plan that maximizes living space at a reasonable cost is proving popular with large and medium size families at Greenleaf in Tracy, according to Ed Rocca, director of sales and marketing for Standard-Pacific Corp., the builders.

"Plan 38 offers old fashioned roominess with modern conveniences," comments Rocca. "The master bedroom suite is designed to afford parents a lot of privacy with its own full bath and a dressing area. Additionally, there are three other large bedrooms with their own full bath opening off a connecting hall.

"The spacious kitchen is situated between the living room and the family room, allowing families a formal and an informal option for entertaining and family activities," adds Rocca.

Located in the desirable northwest residential section of Tracy, Greenleaf offers a variety of three and four bedroom floor plans and a choice of 12 exterior elevations. Standard-Pacific offers a variety of financing options to qualified homebuyers.

Additionally, these fine homes offer separate dining areas, formal entries, walk-in closets, compartmented baths and inside laundries.

While popular floor plans that meet individual needs are a hallmark of Greenleaf in Tracy, Rocca credits the development's popularity with "great property values."

"It's a country setting within commuting distance of city jobs," points our Rocca. "Where else in the San Francisco Bay Area are you going to find a comparable fully air conditioned single-family home set on an individual lot for as low as $47,990?"

Homemakers have told Rocca how much they enjoy the garden view country kitchens with their built-in Gaffers and Sattler oven and range combination, two-speed kitchen fan, large double sinks, power waste disposal, sheet vinyl flooring, wood-grain finished cabinets, and easy-to-clean countertops.

Greenleaf Tracy homes also have raised wooden floors instead of concrete slabs offered by most other new home developments in this price range. They offer thermostatically controlled forced air heating for the cool winter months and air conditionin0 for the warm summer months. Additionally each home has wall-to-wall carpeting throughout, acoustical ceilings, glass-lined heaters, prewired telephone outlets and 220-wiring in the laundry areas.

Optional extras which allow homeowners to modify their homes to personal needs include a built-in dishwasher, cedar shake roof, and masonry fireplace.

Wide overhanging eaves with full fascia gutters protect the exteriors with aluminum thresholds, weatherstripped entry doors and screened patio doors. Each home has an attached two-car garage and decorator lighting fixtures.

Greenleaf Tracy is situated near three family recreation parks and the Sacramento River Delta marinas are only a short drive away.

"Greenleaf's location near communities such as Fremont, Livermore, Hayward, Pleasanton and Stockton makes it appealing to first-time buyers looking to enter the home market at an affordable level," says Rocca.

Record total of permits

San Francisco — Total building permit authorizations in 16 Northern Coastal counties climbed to a record $3.7 billion during 1977, up 35 percent from the $2.7 billion level of 1976.

Gerald McIntyre, vice president and administrator of the bank's Real Estate Finance Department in San Francisco, said that a very strong boost from the area's nonresidential sector complemented significant homebuilding gains during the year. "While the residential sector posted a respective gain of 26 and 31 percent in single-family and multifamily construction, the nonresidential sector registered a huge 54 percent increase during 1977 — primarily due to substantial gains in commercial construction."

McIntyre based his report on data compiled by Security Pacific Bank's Research Department for the current issue of the bank's monthly publication, California Construction Trends, which this month features the 1978 nonresidential construction outlook.

Security Pacific Bank's real estate executive in Northern California said that homebuilding permits issued during 1977 totaled $2.4 billion, up 27 percent from the $1.9 billion level of the previous year.

"Single-family home permits totaled $1.8 billion last year," he said, "up over one-fourth from the $1.4 billion 1976 mark. Permits for multiple dwelling units — duplexes, triplexes and apartments — totaled $379 million last year, a gain of 31 percent over the $289 million level of 1976."

Home remodeling accounted for the balance of Northern Coastal California's residential sector and, at $248 million, declared a 29 percent gain from the $193 million recorded during the previous year.

Reviewing the nonresidential side, McIntyre reported that Northern Coastal Califronia's 16-county region totaled $1.3 billion in 1977, an impressive 54 percent surge from the $845 million of the previous year.

The banker also noted that, for the month of December, 1977, total building permit valuations reached $364 million, up 17 percent from the $312 million November level.

Douglas fir — source of most lumber in America

The state tree of Oregon, the Douglas fir, named after a Scottish botanist, is an evergreen with flat needles and cones roughly shaped like eggs. It's also the source of more lumber than any other single tree in North America.

No wonder, then, that when you walk into a lumber yard and ask for a piece of plywood, with no other specification, you're likely to get Douglas fir. The least expensive of the plywoods, it is very strong and thus suitable for most projects. But it is not easy to get a fine finish on it in the conventional way because of its "wild" grain, so it requires a little extra attention. The treatment is simple and can be used with anY wood with a grain that is likely to show through a regular finish after a period of time, including other types of firs.

There are two kinds of sealers made for use with such woods. One is white, the other clear. If you intend to paint the plywood' give it a coat of the white sealer according to the instructions on the container. If the plywood is to be coated with varnish or any other transparent finishing material, use the clear sealer. Ask your dealer to give you the sealer made especially for use on fir. Then, to be sure, make certain that the label says exactly that.

Once the sealer is on and has thoroughly dried, finish the plywood the same as with any other wood. Incidentally, although plywood usually comes thoroughly sanded, it's not a bad idea to go over it once before putting on any finish. Use a fine grade of sandpaper and then wipe the surface with a cloth moistened in turpentine.

Plywood gets it name because it is made of thin sheets of wood of plies — glued face to face. with the grains running in alternate directions for extra strength against warpage. One type of plywood has a solid center with veneers glued to both surfaces.

It is the face of the plywood that gives it the designation of fir, pine, spruce, birch, walnut or whatever. Those with hardwood facings are used for fine furniture and are more expensive.

Plywood comes in various grades. It isn't necessary to memorize alll of them, but if you intend to use the wood for any special purpose, ask the dealer for his advice. You can get a plywood free of defects, one which has a limited number of defects, one with still more, and so on. Some have perfect or almost perfect surfaces on both sides, some only on one, the latter suitable for an installation where one side will not be visible.

While all plywood is moisture-resistant, it should not be used outdoors unless it carries an "exterior" stamp. The exterior plywood has waterproof glue between the plies as well as other qualities that enable it to withstand outdoor use.

Final phase of Paseo San Ramon

Paseo San Ramon is previewing the third Phase of homes in the final unit this weekend. Exspansive, multi-level designs and an array of luxury appointments are featured in this rural San Ramon community of three, four and five bedroom residences on Burning Tree Court, near Alcosta Boulevard. Many of the striking homes overlook San Ramon National Golf Course. Prices start at $97,995.

Paseo San Ramon is previewing Phase III this weekend in the final unit of the community's expansive multi-level homes, reported Dan Montrose, project sales manager for Shea Homes, the builder.

Four completely furnished and designer-decoratd models, by Barbara Elliott Interiors, of Concord, are on display in the rural development on Burning Tree Court, off Alcosta Boulevard.

Large three, four and five bedroom residences, offering up to 2,859 square feet of living space in a variety of 12 professionally color-coordinsated exteriors, howcase an array of luxury appointments. Many of the homes offer an exceptional view of adjoining San Ramon National Golf Course or the surrounding foothills, now a spectacular sweep of green. Prices begin at $97,995 and excellant financing is available to qualified buyers.

"Paseo San Ramon has been designed to afford homeseekers a pleasant lifestyle in an uncrowded, serene setting," Montrose pointed out. "In addition to offering a refreshing country environment, the area boasts a fine school system as well as excellent shopping, recreational, and entertainment facilities."

An exciting floor plan selection includes such standard price quality amenities as sunken living and family rooms, vaulted ceilings, fireplaces with gas outlets, wet bars (in most plans), wall-to-wall carpeting, acoustical ceilings, cultured marble vanities, decorator lighting fixtures, and master bedroom suites with dressing areas and walk-in or wardrobe closets with mirrored wardrobe doors.

Homes throughout the community, available in single-level and two-tory designs, highlight full ceiling and wall insulation, thermostatically controlled forced air heating, concrete walks and driveways, three-car garages with additional storage, complete weather stripping on front doors, family-sized water heaters, anodized aluminum windows, plumbing for washer and 220-volt dryer outlet, complete rear yard fencing, and underground utilities.

"Masterfully planned, all-electric kitchens are enhanced by a double oven (one self-cleaning and one microwave), ceramic cook top, dishwasher, trash compactor, triple compartmented sink with disposal, furniture-finished hardwood cabinets, and old-fashioned pantries," said Montrose. "All have garden views and will delight the homemaker."

He added that even the baths are elegant. "They not only offer the latest in compartmented styling but feature ceramic tiled Roman tubs."

Functional interiors, emphasizing an indoor-outdoor lifestyle, afford generous room for informal family living or sophisticated entertaining, according to Montrose.

Paseo San Ramon's secluded locale is easily accessible from Highways 580 and 680 and is just a short drive away from the metropolitan areas of Contra Costa and Alameda counties, San Francisco, and the rest of the Peninsula.

Stoneman Estates opening

Real Estate

Stoneman Estates in Pittsburg has opened its doors and is previewing new one and two story homes.

Built for the Stoneman Corp., a firm which has concentrated building in Los Angeles and Orange counties for 25 years, the houses start in price at $62,500.

Bruce Kittess, spokesman for the Stoneman Corp., comments, "Stoneman Estates is a superior quality, limited edition collection of one and two story, three and four bedroom luxury homes designed to meet the bigger demands of today's modern family living."

Exteriors of the homes, which sit on terraced lots, are of wood and brick.

Features included are air conditioning, Monray red tile roofs, vaulted ceilings, floor to ceiling brick or stone fireplaces, wet bars, sunken Romal bathtubs, all electric kitchens with continuous cleaning ovens and large two-car garages.

Bathrooms have cultured marble-topped vanities.

"The combination of the architecturally exciting floor plans, the accessibility to the Delta waterways and the new shopping centers and schools in this area, plus so many upgraded amenities ... make Stoneman Estates a home value that ... is rarely matched anywhere in the East Bay area, Kittess contended.

Stoneman Estates is located at the corner of Stoneman Avenue and Harbour Boulevard in Pittsburg. The sales office is open daily from 10 a.m. to dusk.

Pleasant Hill getting new condominiums

Construction has begun at Vista del Monte, a new community of 20 moderately priced condominium homes on Monte Cresta Dr. in Pleasant Hill.

Occupancies are scheduled to begin in late Spring. Featuring contemporary styled architecture with stucco siding, wood accent areas and tile roofs, the new community provides views of Mt. Diablo to the west and the foothills to the east.

The new homes are expected to be offered at preview prices starting below $50,000 when sales begin in early spring.

Conventional financing and 10 percent down payment programs will be available.

Vista del Monte is being developed by D & M Development Company for BDM Associates, a limited Partnership. The project will be Pleasant Hills' first condominium community, following the successful introduction of several townhome programs in recent years.

"Our marketing research studies indicate that there is a very definite need for reasonably priced condominium homes in Contra Costa County, as a distinct alternative for couples with grown children and single people who want the advantages of home ownership," stated Gary Tyness, president of The Ryness Company, exclusive Vista del Monte sales agent.

"Consequently, our planners have been able to leave out many of often unwanted recreation facilities and other extra frills to keep down both the sales price and the monthly maintenance fees.

"What's left is a high quality, attractive, affordable home designed for people of all ages who seek a carefree lifestyle without the concern of home maintenance."

Homes at Vista del Monte include enclosed downstairs back patios or upstairs balconies, central refrigerated air conditioning, and a choice of several carpet and hard surface flooring types.

Kitchens are U - shaped, with a convenient serving bar leading to the dining area. Self cleaning ovens, washers and dryers are among the standard features at Vista del Monte.

The community is a half-block from bus service which goes directly to the Pleasant Hill BART station, and five miles from the Sun Valley Regional Shopping Center. A public park and a library are within one and one-half blocks of the development.

The Vista del Monte sales information center will open in early spring.

The community is located less than one mile west of Interstate 680 (Highway 24) at the Oak Park exit, on Monte Cresta Dr.

For additional information, call The Ryness Company at 820-3432.

George A. Serrecchia

New VP at Lafayette Federal

The Board of Directors of Lafayette Federal Savings recently announced the promotion of George A. Serrecchia to the position of Vice President, Loans.

Serrecchia had been assistant vice president and loan administrator at Lafayette Federal Savings since joining the company in March, 1976.

Serrecchia, 34, attended Saint Ignatius High School in San Francisco and then went on to get a degree in political science from Washington State University.

He returned to the Bay Area in 1976 after a six-years with the Navy where he gained experience in the mortgage lending field. Serrecchia lives in Livermore with his wife, Evie, and two children.

Antiques for your home

You can be giant steps ahead of those mobs at spring tag sales if you bone up on antiques and near-antiques that are likely to show up at such events.

And what better time for such an education than the bleak days of winter?

Knowing how to go about acquiring such knowledge is important so you don't waste your time. And a good beginning is to decide what fascinates you about antiques and other collectibles. Do you want to collect? Are you a browser looking for bargains? Are you trying to furnish a home with inexpensive quality objects, old or not/

If you can narrow your interests to glass' Victorian furniture' or a collection of turtles, you have a better chance to become knowledgeable in a short time. Trying to know too much, too soon, about everything can be a frustrating experience. With hundreds of different kinds of objects at tag sales that might vary from French porcelain stoves to whale oil lamps, it might be confusing.

Let's say you decide to collect hobnail "vaseline glass." With your newly acquired knowledge, you just glance over the items exhibited and if there is "vaseline glass," you inspect it. If it looks like the real thing — and your trained eye should set you straight on that — you can decide whether the price is right, whehter it is a pieces you will enjoy and so on. There is confusion about "vaseline glass" — much of it is not old and years ago these reproductions were sold in variety stores for a few cents. The real thing is made with uranium, so it is scare.

A class on the subject at your local museum, the twon historical society, or adult education center can be Your start to becoming an expert.

Some people collect glass patterns, some collect a particular color — such as cranberry or amethyst. Ruby glass was made with gold and there are the expensive glass items, some signed.

When you decide to study the thing you decide to collect. first investigate whether there is a class of the subject in your town.

Furniture is a large category, so if you want to collect something for your own use, it is best to limit your study to your main area of interest. Spreading out the period, designer or wood might broaden the study so that it would be too time consuming.

Books are great aids in learning about the category of your choice but you should begin by trying to see some pieces that have a relationship that puts the entire study into perspective. The color of the wood, the prints, the measurements should be observed. Old pieces may shrink or show signs of wear that look favorable to the piece; good old wood develops a patina that can be far more beautiful than a refinished piece.

To see the furniture in which you are interested you can visit antique stores, thrift shops, previews of antique and museum shows this provides the opportunity to inspect the piece closely. Catalogs from the shows and museums can be informative and they are a great help. Some people supscribe to gallery catalogs of forthcoming sales and they can decide whether they want to go to that particular exhibit.xgFor example, if you want to study 18th-century furniture it might be a waste of time right now to go to sales of Islamic jewelry.

Some lectures and courses given by town societies are very worthwhile. The lecturers are usually expert on a subject — Federal mirrors, Georgian silver or some other specialty — and the fees are a good investment.

Once you have learned all you want to know about one collectible, you can go on to something else that interests you.

Location the sales key in state housing market

California, the state which leads the nation in the overall homebuilding process, has set precedence time and time again in innovative design. But according to many state builders, the most sought after element of home hunters is site location.

Views have becomea major marketing tool. Equally popular are water-oriented sites and those either overlooking or adjacent to a golf course.

Although ocean and lake view sites in California are diminishing, golf course oriented homes are still available. However, builders agree that these, too, will be increasingly hard to find in the future. Moreover, the cost of developing a golf course (between $1½ million) is such that many builders are unable to consider this type investment.

Broadmoor Homes, Inc., builder of the new 431-acre Crow Canyon Country Club residential and recreational community near Danville, California, commissioned a study to determine what effect, if any, golf course orientation had on the appreciation of a home.

The results were not surprising.

In practically every case surveyed, homes located adjacent to a golf course have appreciated faster and remained at a higher resale value than homes in other locations.

Experienced realtors in the Bay Area all agree that golf course orientation is certain, not only to sell a home originally, but to re-sell it at a better profit.

Chop Keenan, a peninsula realtor for many years, had this to say: "Water views and golf courses are desirable site amenities for any home buyer. Water-view sites are scarce, but golf course home sites are still available to merchant builders in the Bay Area. Although parcels are rather difficult to find, the Crow Canyon Country Club development in Contra Costa County demonstrates that a merchant builder can still successfully develop a golf course project.

"People will pay a premium to justify a golf course. Half Moon Bay Golf Links by Westinghouse in San Mateo is another example of a quality golf course development. Westinghouse has buyers standing in line for lots selling from $75,000 to $125,000.

"Even with Broadmoor's success at Crow Canyon, we do not expect an over-abundance of golf course developments, because of several factors. First, there is a scarcity of suitable sites, and second, a sizable capital investment is required. Finally, there are many additional hurdles for a builder, even if he does find a site," Keenan said.

According to statistics released by the Contra Costa Board of Realtors, the average annual price of single-family homes in the area more than tripled since 1964. The average annual price in 1964 for a single family home was $2V,282. By mid-1977, this figure had reached $79,577.

Average price of single family homes by area during the month of June 1977, ranged from $66,036 in Concord, to $138,732 in Orinda.

Rapidly increading values, as well as accelerated real estate activity has resulted in a huge rise in the value of sales as well. For the first half of 1977, according to the Contra Costa Board of Realtors, the total value of sales had reached $371,113,000, compared to the 1976 figure of $239,443,000.

While all property values are rising in the current market, those properties located adjacent to, or near a golf course or a country club seem to have risen even faster.

Harlan Geldermann, whose family lived in Contra Costa since 1850, is one of the most prominent realtors and land owners in the Bay Area. Roundhill Country Club and the surrounding area is owned and is being developed by Geldermann.

"Proximity to a golf course has definitely enhanced home values," Geldermann said, "but another factor to consider is that we have taken great pains to maintain architectural control over what has been built. I believe this has helped to accelerate values in the Roundhill area. Land values in Roundhill have increased faster than in other parts of the valley."

"A unique thing about Roundhill is the fact that fairway lots were not in greater demand than those across the street. People want to live in a country club atmosphere. They seem to be willing to pay just as much for a home that is not on the fairway," Geldermann said.

To underline the rapid incerase in values at Roundhill, Geldermann pointed out that lots sold for only 12,000 to $14,000 when the golf course and country club were completed in 1960-1961. Homes built on these lots cost between $65,000 and $70,000.

Today, lots at Roundhill are selling for $65,000 to $75,000, and some key view lots are selling for $100,000. Homes being built on these lots now currently cost from $225,000 to $400,000.

The private golf and tennis clubhouse facilities at Crown Canyon County Club will occupy some 120 acres of the total planned community, with nearly 100 additional acres of parks and open space, according to Kile Morgan, director of marketing for Broadmoor Homes, Inc.

Homes at Crow Canyon offer a broad range of choices. The luxurious Country Estates offer three and four bedroom homes, with 1,858 to 2,808 square feet of living space. Prices range from $121,000 to $181,000.

Fairway Villas, priced from $78,990 to $89,490, overlook the golf course and offer 1,426 to 1,572 square feet of living area.

The Garden Manor series are zero-lot line, single family homes with 1,595 to 2,082 square feet. These three and four bedroom homes are priced from $91,000 to $119,500.

A members program is currently being offered at Crow Canyon Country Club, with applications being accepted in several categories. Memberships are of three types: social, regular or full membership, and tennis and pool membership. Details can be obtained by contacting Dick Baker, club representative.

The new Broadmoor Homes development may be reached by taking Highway 680 to the Crow Canyon exit east, then going on directly to the community.

SALESPERSON OF THE MONTH!

JUNE SALBER

JUNE SALBER of Tri-Valley Brokers has again earned the salesperson of the month award, this time for the months of December and January. June also achieved membership in the Board of Realtors MILLION DOLLAR CLUB this year, which means she closed over one million dollars in real estate transactions in a 12 month period. That takes not only a tremendous amount of understanding and knowledge about the business, but also a sincere dedication to the profession. June is also studying for her Real Estate Brokers' License because she feels that education is of prime importance in the field of real estate.

If you ask June what she likes best about what she does, she'll tell you "it's the people I meet. I consider everyone I've done business with my friend, and they consider me theirs. Since I have confidence in my own ability to help someone, they can have confidence in me. It makes for a wonderful, honest and open relationship."

JUNE SALBER is a good person to call if you have a question about buying or selling a home — 846-0898 or 828-8700.

IMMEDIATE AVAILABILITY ● IMMEDIATE AVAILABILITY

The Peugeot 604 SL gives you comfort and roadability the Cadillac Seville can't deliver.

To experience the superior riding comfort and roadability of the Peugeot 604, you have to drive it yourself. When you do, you'll discover a level of satisfaction the Cadillac Seville can't provide.

Smoother ride
Unlike Seville, the Peugeot 604 has McPherson struts for extra-long vertical wheel travel. And oversized shock absorbers designed and patented by Peugeot.

Better handling
Four-wheel independent suspension and weight distribution that's nearly perfect give the 604 better road holding characteristics than the Seville.

Tighter cornering
The 604's turning circle is 4½ feet smaller in diameter than Seville's.

Better braking
In 70 to 0 tests, the Peugeot 604 stopped short of Seville by over ten feet.*

More precise steering
Unlike the Seville, the Peugeot 604 has power-assisted rack and pinion steering, so you can park with ease without losing the feel of the road at highway speeds.

Lower price
The Seville starts at around $13,350. A comparably equipped Peugeot 604 SL lists for about $1,600 less.†

Naturally both cars give you comfortable interiors. But for a much lower price, the Peugeot 604 gives you the total driving comfort only a true European grand touring sedan can deliver.
